World Business Leaders to Discuss Problems Next Week at Washington

Atlantic City, N. J.—(AP)—Out of three days of discussion by the leaders of American business, attending the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has come one definite thought—that, in the opinion of business men, the depression will be overcome and stability permanently achieved only when government removes the restrictions that business men believe now prevent legitimate cooperation.

Julius H. Barnes, reflected chairman of the board of directors of the chamber, last night advocated reduction of rates of duty in the Hawley Smoot tariff law, and said this move would cause foreign countries which he said were retaliating against exports from the United States, and air business recovery.

A change in the tariff, he believed would lead to resumption of trade and could be accomplished without affecting American standards of living. He also said reduction of the 121 per cent rate on exports of cotton and wool, would have a tendency to stem speculation in times of prosperity.

Barnes held by many to be the most effective spokesman of American business opinion in its broader aspects. He is a member of the board of the depression committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and has been active in the movement to remove political interference with business. He vigorously denied business' culpability, holding that it has been prevented from accomplishing its wishes by anti-trust laws that he no longer valid, by burdensome taxation and excessive government intervention in the cotton and wheat markets; of the virtual default of debts by an Australian state, and to legal restrictions that have prevented business from joining its forces even within industries to "level the playing field."

Free Hand For Industry

"Just as soon as the government makes possible the joining of various units of business to keep down waste, regulate production, capacity and output, just then will business find its own way out," he said. "But legislative panaceas have no place in the American business man's mind. He does not believe there is any one single solution of the problem. If the anti-trust laws are altered so that the individual need not fear

RUMOR BANKING FIRMS MAY FORM BIG COMBINE

Chicago—(AP)—The Evening Post said today a rumor is widely circulated that the Central Trust company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic may be consolidated into an institution with resources exceeding $300,000,000 and deposits of $200,000,000.

Official comment could not be had from the Central Trust leaders but Ward C. Castle, executive vice president of the National Bank of the Republic, was quoted as saying that "in the minds of some outsiders such a consolidation would be a logical one." But he added that there had been no discussions along the line recently.

It was pointed out that no deal would likely be consummated before the return from London of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, honorary chairman of the board of the Central Trust, who sails for home on leave May 15.

Suspect Arrested In Highway Shooting

Seriously Ill

GEORGE F. BAKER

New York—(AP)—George F. Baker, the financier, is seriously ill with pneumonia which developed Thursday night. His condition was reported steadily worse. He is 91 years of age.

Mr. Baker's secretary said the financier and philanthropist, who is chairman of the board of the First National bank and director in several of the country's largest corporations, went to the bank Thursday to transact business. He became ill that evening.

"His condition has grown steadily worse since that time," the secretary said today.

$20,000 Fire

On Farm In

Calumet-Co

Fire, which is thought to have started from sparks from a burning fence post, destroyed the home and farm buildings of James Hepner, town of Rantoul, Calumet-co, about five miles northeast of Chilton, Friday evening. The loss, which is estimated at more than $20,000, is about half covered by insurance. The fire was discovered by Mrs. Hepner about 7 o'clock.

While milking she thought she smelled smoke, but could not trace it. Some time after she had returned to the house she saw the blaze in the barn. The Chilton fire department was called, but by the time it arrived the fire had gained such headway that it could not be halted. A strong wind blowing toward the house spread the fire rapidly.

The loss includes the house, two barns, one 40 by 60 feet and one 40 by 90 feet, a machine shed, 25 by 30 feet, a chicken coop, 20 head of young cattle, three horses, 100 chickens, two automobiles, and all household furnishings and clothing. Nearly all of the farm machinery was destroyed.

It is thought a lighted cigarette ignited the fence post. Mr. Hepner was up north when the fire occurred.

FIRE ON OTHER FARMS

Green Bay—(AP)—Ten buildings, three hofers, a horse, chickens, machinery and fodder were destroyed today by fire on the farm of Herman Kriescher, east of here in Brown-co. A bucket brigade saved the house. Damage was estimated at $12,000.

The Kewaunee-co farm residence of Frank Mazanetz was burned last night when fire broke out in the kitchen. The loss was estimated at $5,000.

FIRST MATE OF CARFERRY HELD IN MILWAUKEE

Motorist Seriously Wounded By Man He Helped on Road Near Kenosha

Milwaukee—(AP)—Donald McCauley, 37, first mate of the Grand Trunk car ferry, Madison, was in custody of police here today for questioning in connection with the shooting of Arthur E. Millies, president of the Building Specialties company, Milwaukee, who was reported near death in a Kenosha hospital.

Two witnesses, John Hoffman, Chicago, and Mrs. Katherine Lenzen, 25, taken into custody here with McCauley, have admitted, authorities said, that McCauley fired the shot. McCauley denied the accusation.

The three prisoners were taken into custody at the McCauley residence about 2 o'clock a.m. Police said McCauley was on shore leave and had driven to Chicago to visit Mrs. Lenzen, a sister of Pat Gallagher, another officer on the Madison. He met Hoffman at the Lenzen home and the three decided, after having several drinks, to drive to Milwaukee, police said.

McCauley is married and the son of Captain McCauley, master of the steamer Bambridge of the Goodrich fleet, now living in Chicago. The father was a resident here many years and is widely known among mariners on the Great Lakes.

Kenosha—(AP)—Shot by a motorist whose car he had helped push out of a roadside ditch a few minutes before, Arthur E. Millies, 41, president of the Millies Building Specialty company, Milwaukee, lay near death in St. Catherine hospital here today.

He was wounded in the abdomen by a revolver bullet last night at a highway intersection seven miles west of Kenosha. Millies stopped on seeing a small coupe stalled in the ditch along the highway. Two men and a woman sat beside the machine. Millies assisted them in pushing it to the pavement, then continuing homeward.

A short distance down the road, Millies stopped at an intersection. The coupe, following, crashed into the back of his car. Millies left his seat into the coupe, backed up, and pulled around the wounded man, and sped northward.

Mrs. Millies, unable to drive, assisted her husband to the driver's seat. He drove an uncertain course to a roadside a few blocks away. Deputy Sheriff Jos Koeske met him, attracted by his erratic driving. Millies collapsed in the officer's arms. He was brought to the hospital here.

Mrs. Millies gave Sheriff Dave Robinson the license number of the gunman's car. It was found to have been issued to a West Bend, Wis., farmer. West Bend authorities were asked to investigate.

The Millies were returning from a business trip.

MORE VENIREMEN NEEDED FOR JURY

Kirkland Trial Adjourned Until Monday as Lists Are Exhausted

Valparaiso, Ind.—(AP)—The Virgil Kirkland trial, a standstill today to allow bailiffs to scour the countryside for more prospective jurors.

Judge Grant Crumpacker adjourned the second trial of the Gary youth, charged with the murder of Arlene Draves, his sweetheart, until Monday after the eighty-fourth venireman—the last on the lists—was called and dismissed yesterday afternoon for having an opinion.

With only the seven men still in the box having a chance to be accepted, prospects were slim that a jury would be picked by Tuesday night.

Two women, who safely passed defense interrogation, Mrs. Mattie Conover, a grandmother, and Mrs. Martha Cowdry, mother of a girl Arlene's age, would be challenged by the state. Prosecutor John Underwood said.

Mrs. Conover, Underwood said, has expressed an opinion against the death penalty. Mrs. Cowdry is an aunt of Mrs. John Crumpacker, wife of one of defense counsel.

Woman Quizzed On Career Of Jordan, Police Slayer

Chicago Detectives Inquire Into Her Part in Bank Robberies

Chicago—(AP)—Policeman Patrick Durkin died in a hospital today, the second officer to succumb to wounds inflicted by Frank Jordan Thursday night as he fled police pursuers at Michigan-blvd and Randolph-st.

Chicago—(AP)—Chief of Detectives John Norton, endeavoring to learn more about the criminal career of Frank Jordan, alias Carlson, the alleged slayer of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, questioned Mrs. Gladys Jackson Jordan today.

"She hasn't told us all she knows and I want to hold her before placing any charge against her," Norton said. "Jordan has confessed to several bank robberies downstate and we wish to investigate her part in them.

"She denies knowing anything about the bank robberies but a woman was seen driving a car in one of them. She was also in a car when her husband shot Ruthy."

Jordan was held in the county jail under indictment for murder but attorneys for his wife petitioned Chief Justice John P. McGorty of the criminal court for a writ of habeas corpus.

Chief Norton said Mrs. Jordan was formerly Gladys Jackson of Kewanee, Ill. Prior to her marriage to Jordan two months ago she lived with a sister in Rock Island, Norton said, and before her marriage to Jordan she was divorced from her first husband.

Two boys to safety deposit boxes in Rock Island which were found in the room in which the two lived in Chicago were turned over to Rock Island police in the belief that bank loot may be found.

Norton said Jordan told him he burned $17,000 worth of Liberty bonds he has taken in one of the bank robberies, thus making possible his release on bond. Witnesses are to view her to determine whether she aided her husband in bank robberies.

Chief Justice McGorty dismissed the application for a habeas corpus writ when the police promised to charge Mrs. Jordan formally with some offense before 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, thus making possible her release on bond. Witnesses are to view her to determine whether she aided her husband in bank robberies.

STUDENTS WAR WITH UNIVERSITY CHIEFS

Strike at St. Lawrence to Affect Extra-Curricular Activities

Canton, N. Y.—(AP)—Students of St. Lawrence university, claiming to represent 90 per cent of the student body, today called a strike to affect all extra-curricular activities as a result of the refusal of university officers to rescind rulings the students called objectionable.

The strike was called after the president of the university, Richard Eddy Sykes, declined at a meeting with the students' representatives to change the rulings and announced he would "fight to the finish."

The representatives said the strike would affect all sports, publications, and meetings, outside of classes. There are between 700 and 800 students in the university. One effect of the passive resistance will be, the representatives said, the absence of the majority of students from the chapel service when George William (Ae) Russell, Irish poet, is expected to speak.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of trustees, expected by the students to act as a mediator in the difference, was unable to be present because of the meaning of the board just before the strike was called.

BOY KILLER IS SENT TO ST. CHARLES HOME

Milwaukee—(AP)—Chester Wozek, 13, today was under commitment to the St. Charles Home for Boys for an indefinite period for the slaying of Florian Polak, 14, a playmate, with a baseball bat. Juvenile Judge Charles L. Aaron ignored a plea of self-defense. Defense counsel argued Chester had been made the butt of his playmates' taunts and was goaded to the attack by older boys' darts. Er. H. E. Bushong, county psychiatrist, testified the boy "had little conception of what he had done, and seemed moved only by self-pity."

MINNESOTA STUDENT KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Minneapolis—(AP)—A University of Minnesota student was killed and three companions injured last night as their car crashed through a high way guard rail and tipped over near here. Robert McBrady, 23, Minneapolis, sophomore academic student, was the victim.

The driver of the car, Iver Wahl, 22, suffered a lacerated leg; Russell Cornell, 19, received lacerations and Herman Schaer, 22, was burned. All live here.

LABOR CONTRACT BILL SIGNED IN MICHIGAN

Columbus, Ohio—(AP)—Governor George White today signed the "yellow dog" labor contract bill which makes illegal any labor contract which attempts to forbid either employee or employer from organizing. Organized labor had fought for such a bill for several years. The present one will now become law in 90 days.

INSANE NEGRO KILLER RECAPTURED IN OHIO

Lima, Ohio—(AP)—The second of two insane convicts who early yesterday killed Louis Kiehl, 45, guard at the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, was back in custody today.

Samuel Nelson, 19, Negro, was captured in a field eight miles from the hospital his yesterday after a day's freedom. He escaped into the open after he and John Powell, 24, a white man formerly of Columbus, attacked the guard and strangled him to death.

OPPOSITION TO HOOVER SEEN IN PARTY CONTEST

Borah, Norris and LaFollette Among Strong Foes of President

Washington—(AP)—Republican independents may oppose President Hoover in the party primaries next spring.

This group in the senate from the northwest agricultural states has disagreed with Hoover policies through out his administration.

Senators Borah of Idaho; Norris of Nebraska; and LaFollette of Wisconsin, Independents, are mentioned in political discussions here as possible candidates, together with Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania.

Senator Johnson of California, who was not aligned with the Independents, but who has found himself in frequent opposition to the president, also is counted among the potential candidates.

Republican regulars who in 1925 went into the field against Hoover in the party primaries next spring, are watching interestedly a "preparing to go actively to the fore for the president."

It is a paradoxical situation. Leaders in the fight for Hoover in 1928 may be his opponents in 1932. The old guard allies who fought him so hard in 1928 may be his main support next year.

Senator Brookhart, Republican, Iowa, a member of the independent group, opened the discussion today of "progressive ideas."

"Progressive sentiment ought to be 'cast out,'" he said, "by such leaders as Senators Johnson, Borah, Norris and LaFollette and by Governor Pinchot. There is no doubt in my mind of their popularity in many states."

Opponents feared that the reelection of Herbert Hoover is impossible and that it would strengthen the party immensely to have a new candidate. If the Progressives could carry most of the principal states it would then be evident to everybody that a new candidate should be recommended.

However, the prospective candidates put forward by Senator Brookhart decline to concede the likelihood of their becoming candidates—at least at this time—and the whole proposition is still in the speculation stage.

In 1923 the old guard "allies" took away several important states from Hoover in the re-convention campaign, some in direct contests, but they failed to muster enough strength and foundered when the powerful Pennsylvania delegation went to his support.

INTERVIEW REFUSED PRESS BY BOY HERO

Washington—(AP)—Bryan Untied, 13-year-old Colorado boy visiting President Hoover refused to be interviewed by White House correspondents today because he had "promised" to give his impressions of his visit to the Denver Post.

Thodore Joslin, secretary to the president, who had made arrangements for an interview, announced that the boy felt he should give his story to that paper and that he had promised his father he would.

News of what the boy has done while here has been given out through official channels and no one attached to the White House has been allowed to talk about what he did or "anything he said."

Joslin announced that the boy would leave for his home "some time tonight or tomorrow."

BAVARIA GUILLOTINES GERMAN TORCH SLAYER

Regensburg, Bavaria—(AP)—The guillotine, still resorted to in some parts of Germany, today was used in fulfilling a death sentence passed on Erich Tetzner, a torch slayer, who burned a stranger in his automobile in an effort to defraud a life insurance company.

Hans Reichardt, 59-year-old executioner, who began his duties more than a generation ago, was in charge. It was the sixteenth time he had been called upon in this capacity. Twelve citizens and several newspapermen witnessed the execution.

U. S. COMMERCE GROUP IS HEADED BY STRAWN

Washington—(AP)—Silas H. Strawn of Chicago will head the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for the next year.

A list of officers and directors of the organization made public today disclosed his election along with the reelection of Julius H. Barnes of New York, as chairman of the board. The officers were chosen yesterday at the conclusion of the annual meeting of the organization at Atlantic City.

Flies to Rescue

CAPTAIN ALBIN AHBREBERG

Relief Ship Forced Back To Iceland

Reykjavik—(AP)—The steamer Quinn, which sailed yesterday for Greenland, carrying an airplane which was to have searched for Augustine Courtauld, missing British scientist, radioed today that she was putting back to Reykjavik.

Serious motor trouble developed, the message said, and the expedition could have to be abandoned.

Captain Albin Ahrenberg, Swedish flier, landed here last night after a flight from Bergen, Norway, via the Faroe Islands. He hopes to resume his flight today.

Two groups of dog teams, driven by friends of the scientist, were believed to be mulling across the frozen wastes toward the tiny meteorological station in which he was believed to be spending the winter. They left Angmagssalik yesterday afternoon.

A third plane, belonging to H. G. Watkins, leader of the England-Canada air route expedition of which Courtauld was a part, prepared to leave Angmagssalik for the same purpose. Journey which it sustained in February on a forced landing has been repaid.

3 FATALLY BURNED IN AUTO SMASHUP

Car in Flames After Colliding With Truck in Michigan Village

Moscow, Mich.—(AP)—Three men were fatally burned last night when they were trapped in their sedan which had been in flames after colliding with a truck on the main street of this village.

Frank LaVerne, 19, of Detroit, was burned to death as he sat, with broken arms and legs, in the automobile. John Sudlow, 29, and Frank Soltz, also of Detroit, died of their burns in a Jackson hospital today.

The five men were enroute from Detroit to Jonesville, when a truck in front of them suddenly slowed up. The youths' machine crashed into the rear end with such force that the door locks of the sedan jammed, checking their escape. Fire broke out almost immediately.

A number of persons ran to their assistance and succeeded in rescuing four of them. In the meantime the heat had grown so intense that rescuers were forced to abandon efforts to save LaVerne.

Hospital authorities said early this morning that the other two severely injured youths probably would not live

Al Capone Sought For Questioning In Illinois Gang Killing

POLICE THINK VICTIM EARLY RACKET LEADER

Burned Body Believed to Be That of "Mike De Pike" Heiter

Chicago—(P)—Alphonse Capone, the gang chief, was sought today by state's attorney detectives for questioning in connection with their inquiry into the death of a man whose charred body they believed to be that of "Mike DePike" Heiter, pioneer racketeer. The body was found last Thursday in the smoldering ruins of an ice house near Barrington, Ill.

Acting on orders issued by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, the officers raided the Lexington hotel, reputed to be frequently used as Capone headquarters. Although they failed to find the gang chief, four of his henchmen were arrested. They were Louis Russo, brother of "Ma" Malone; "Red" Smith; Phil Anderson; Fred Rossi and Tony Capozio.

The police also arrested at his home, "Dago" Lawrence Mangano, reputed operator of a Capone's vice, gambling and liquor syndicate. Roche said Heiter had operated extensively as a rival to the Mangano organization, other members of which were reported to be in the area in which Heiter operated by the police, who declined to reveal what if anything they had learned. "We will raid everywhere until we drive out every hoodlum from Chicago," Roche said. "This is just part of our campaign to clean up the city. The hoodlums are getting out. That means Capone too, and we are now looking for him."

Positive identification of the "victim" was sought, meanwhile, by police through attempts to trace two of his gold teeth to the dentist who had made them. The work, Roche said after viewing the body, he was convinced the man was Heiter. A partly burned automobile which Heiter had borrowed from one of two women, each of which claimed to be his wife, was found near Itasca, 15 miles from the scene.

The torso was discovered after Mrs. Hattie Gannusch, who lives near the ice house, noticed the fire and called police. She told them she saw three men she believed to be gangsters in the vicinity of the ice house on the afternoon of the fire. Heiter was to have appeared in court yesterday on a charge of perjury, but his attorney asked a continuance, saying that his client had been missing since last Wednesday.

The tournament, to be held on the Ryon college campus May 7, 8, and 9, will have representatives from the New England, Southern, Rocky Mountain and Northwestern districts along with middle western competitors.

FAVOR RETENTION OF DEANS AT UNIVERSITY

Madison—(P)—The agitation for the abolishment of the offices of dean of men and dean of women at the University of Wisconsin has received a definite setback at the hands of the faculty, which this week favored retention of the offices.

While the action only was in the form of a report of the committee on social control, the general faculty is expected to concur in the report on May 3.

"It is our belief that these offices should continue in this university and that those in charge should have the active co-operation and support of every officer of the university," the report said. It based its contention on:

Deans of men and women, here and elsewhere, placed positions in which they are aware of the current of life within the universities recognize, have long rendered admirable service to their institutions.

Large Whale to Be Exhibited in Appleton

An exhibit of two whales, one weighing 65 tons, will be offered here next week. In conjunction with the exhibit, Captain Sky Clark, whaler, will lecture on these sea monsters. A specially built freight car is used to transport the whales about the country. The monster, shown above, measures approximately 65 feet in length.

EXHIBIT WORLD'S LARGEST WHALE HERE NEXT WEEK

Captain Sky Clark, Noted Whaler, to Lecture on Monsters

The world's largest whale and its offspring, the former weighing 65 tons or 130,000 pounds, and the latter three tons or 6,000 pounds, will be exhibited in Appleton next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday according to Frank J. Lee, publicity director and William Oliver, general agent of the exhibit. It will be displayed in a specially built freight car near the Soo line depot on W. College Ave.

The whales were harpooned off the Catalina Island, near the California coast, last August, by a whaling party under the command of Captain Sky Clark, noted whaler, who will be in Appleton to explain the habits and temperament of the sea monsters. Captain Clark also will display several sea trophies acquired by him during his years of sea adventure.

The monster whale battled his captors for 17 turbulent hours after being fatally hit with two large explosive harpoons. Fired from a high-powered harpoon gun capable of hurling one of the death-dealing missiles many hundred yards. A rope and cable were attached to the harpoons and hauled into the whale.

Once the monsters are hoisted to the point of submission they are gradually hauled in to a safe distance from the ship and power pumps used to inflate them with air. The inflation serves as a buoyant aid in towing them to shore. On some occasions these whales have been known to break loose after being apparently subdued, threatening the lives of all those engaged in their capture.

Some mental picture of the larger whale may be had from the dimensions of its mouth, which is sufficiently large to accommodate six people at once. The throat of the whale is hardly large enough to swallow an ordinary sized grapefruit, it is said. This description either explodes the biblical theory of Jonah's escapades with a whale, or else the whale with which the ancient came in contact was a different species from that known to modern whalers.

The Appleton Post-Crescent extends an invitation to all school teachers and principals of schools to see the whale exhibits as guests of this newspaper. All Boy Scouts and Campfire girls also are included in the invitation.

150 MEN EMPLOYED ON HIGHWAY 26 JOB

More than 150 men are employed on construction work on Highway 26 between Rosendale and Waupun, although the work has just started, according to a report from the Fond du Lac-co highway committee. The Walter Blake and Sons Construction company of Appleton, which is in charge of grading work on half the project, is employing about 20 men. This road, a stretch of about 13 miles, is to be paved this summer, thus completing a continuous paved road from Appleton to Madison.

FIRST TELEVISION WEDDING CEREMONY BROADCAST IN EAST

New York—(P)—The first marriage ceremony to be televised—if that's the word—is a matter of history today.

Frank Borie DuVall, 25, a television engineer, and Miss Grayce Lillian Jones, 20, were the principals in it. And except for the flickering lights and the whir and click of curious-looking machines it didn't differ greatly from any other wedding.

In a room on an upper floor of a skyscraper in Fifth Avenue last night an announcer stepped into the focus of the machine and told what was going to happen. The bride and bridegroom came forward, smiled into the machine, and hid everyone's "good evening." The ceremony was read, the bridegroom kissed the bride, relatives sniffled and said the usual things.

"I don't see just why there is so much fuss," Mr. DuVall said. "The ceremony is television, but in every other way the wedding is absolutely regular."

Those who have television sets in their homes reported that the broadcast "filmed well" and that the voices "came over perfectly."

APPLETON GIRL IS STUDYING IN GERMANY

Miss Margaret Engler, daughter of Mrs. Hattie Engler, 215 South River-st., a graduate of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, has spent the past year studying piano in Leipzig, Germany. While Miss Engler was spending her Easter vacation in Dresden and Berlin she was asked to substitute in recitals for Michael Raucheisen, one of the noted pianists and accompanists of Germany.

In Berlin Miss Engler accompanied George Mechlalon, baritone, also a Lawrence Conservatory graduate, in a song recital. Since his graduation Mr. Mechlalon has been engaged in professional work in St. Louis, and has spent the past year studying voice in Berlin. Miss Engler plans to spend the coming year in Berlin.

Rush Seen For Divorce In Nevada

Reno, Nev.—(P)—A rush of 200 to 300 unhappy wives and husbands into Nevada's new high speed divorce mill was anticipated here today with the state's six week residence law definitely in effect.

The bill was phrased to become effective "from and after May 1." Reno's two district courts completed plans for handling separations at the rate of 100 a day, if necessary, to keep up with the expected deluge of petitions.

Under the new method of procedure, no cases filed under the new law were set down for hearing today. The first finished products of the new legal machinery will not appear before Monday.

Each court expected to be able to award a decree every ten minutes in uncontested cases. The great majority of the cases here are not contested. The city has 120 law firms, each of which was expected to file one or more cases today.

Thirteen divorce cases were filed at Las Vegas yesterday. Several attorneys said they would file cases today.

FOUR IN FAMILY SUE Las Vegas, Nev.—(P)—Mrs. Mary C. Beatty's family goes in for divorce in a big way. Each of two sons and two daughters filed suit yesterday to sever marital bonds.

Three asked divorces, charging cruelty. A minor son, Rulon K. Beatty, sued Irene Jewel Beatty for annulment, alleging she had a husband from whom she was not divorced at the time of their marriage.

The family revolt against matrimony did not grow out of the new Nevada six weeks residence divorce law. The Beattys are long time residents.

SEASONAL CUT IS RECORDED DURING WEEK

Disturbing Influences Delay Industry in Work on Upward Curve

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1931 by Post. Pub. Co.
Washington—(CPA)—While business during the past week was characterized by severe liquidation in the financial markets and some declines in the activity of several basic industries much of the recession now going on is considered by officials here to be seasonal.

Official information discloses that there are disturbing factors such as the tendency toward wage reduction and the continuation of wholesale price declines which make it difficult for general business to get a firm grip on its upward curve.

Of the three major types of construction—namely residential, non-residential and public utilities including public works, the greatest relative advance thus far has been made in residential building. In this group contracts for the first quarter have been only 4 per cent below the same period in 1930 while contracts for public works and utilities are 16 per cent below the first quarter of last year and those for non-residential buildings are 41 per cent below. Public works programs are rising, while the building done by the utilities is not as extensive as it was last year. This is because of the unfavorable bond market which has retarded utility issues of securities.

Steel Industry in Doubt All this has caused the iron and steel industry to move to lower operating levels because the demands for structural steel have diminished and the industry is still affected by the uncertainty in the price situation. The leading industries which helped to bring about the business revival in 1922 were automobile production and construction in both building and utility fields. Automobile production has been steadily rising, but declined last Saturday. At a period when the normal seasonal figures are upward the actual production fell off. This is chiefly due to the downward revision in the production schedule of a leading manufacturer. There are signs, however, that another leading automobile company is revising its schedule upward. There is also a gradual increase in the truck output especially the heavy duty trucks, though the demand is best for the light units.

A fundamental is reported by dealers for agricultural implements for early spring use and highway construction and maintenance is looking forward to a better outlook because of the billion dollars to be spent during 1931. Outside of these encouraging signs the other individual lines are quiet or showing declines.

Some of the news received by the government on the business situation indicates clearly that no fundamental or major change in conditions has occurred and that the fluctuations are erratic because they are purely the result of constant readjustment to new conditions.

HISTORY PROF GETS LESSON IN FINANCE FROM 2 STRANGERS

Chicago—(P)—Prof. Horace Morse of the history department of the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis was "wiser today than he was yesterday."

His additional knowledge came after he had taken a little stroll during which he met an affable stranger. "Nice day," said the man as he and the professor strolled along until they met a third man, whose personality seemed to be no less charming than the other. On a street corner they stood, discussing history and other matters, finally taking up finance. One of the strangers suggested matching pennies. "Not I," said the professor, "I never match pennies, but I'll watch."

He did. The stakes rose higher and higher until they reached $100.

"We now need," said one of the two, "an odd man."

Prof. Morse agreed to act as such, but said he would pay nothing if he lost. Three dimes went into the air. One of the two strangers won. The other lost, but the professor agreed to produce $70, just to show the loser he was honest, the winner promising to return the money.

It wasn't returned, however, for the two disappeared around a corner.

"An old game," said the police sergeant to whom the professor complained. "One has a coin with both sides tails. The other carries one with both sides heads. One of them can't lose. The odd man can't win."

The professor understood.

SPEAKER COMMENTS ON FRANKNESS OF MODERN STUDENTS

Declares Pupils of Today Are More Real Than Those of Former Generations

Modern college students are delightfully frank and real as compared with former generations, according to Arthur Drew, a national Y. M. C. A. worker who is making a survey of schools from Texas to Maine. Mr. Drew talked to the Lawrence college student body during the regular student convocation Friday morning on his impressions of American college life.

In telling of a survey conducted in a Kansas school Mr. Drew commented on the frankness of the pupils. "A few years ago, when students heard that I was a Y. M. C. A. worker, they put religion first on the list of interests just to please me, but at the Kansas school it was fifth, after dates, sports and all the rest," Drew reported. He told about one professor's experience in questioning a man about class absences.

"The student reported that he had been unable to attend classes for two days because he was drunk," Mr. Drew said, "and in my day, instead of being so frank we would have complained of tonsillitis."

Cynical Outlook. The second comment Mr. Drew made was on the cynical outlook most college students have on life. He blamed the haunting fear of unemployment for this attitude. When the present senior classes enrolled in college, Mr. Drew pointed out, they fully expected to step into jobs when their course was completed, but now they are finding out that the world can get along without them.

The third observation upon which Mr. Drew commented is the religious confusion of modern youth. Modern youth has refused to take religion of the past on authority and is attempting to discover principles of its own, he pointed out. Instead of keeping Sunday as a day of devotion they want a "seven day religion" which will act the same on every day of the week. But in pointing out a remedy Mr. Drew said that as soon as youth is willing to take religion on the authority of the past as they take the information of text books on authority the confusion will disappear.

RURAL GRADUATES INVITED TO VISIT AT FREEDOM SCHOOL

Meeting Urges Teachers to Send Delegations to Event on May 12

A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, is asking rural school teachers of Freedom district to cooperate with Freedom high school officials in making a success of a visiting day at the Freedom school on Tuesday, May 12. E. C. Schram is principal of the Freedom school.

Mr. Meating's letter to the teachers follows:

"Very soon now your eighth grade pupils will be trying to answer the question, 'Shall I go to high school?' and with that answered, 'Where shall I go?' Our function is to help in answering both of these questions. Obviously, these pupils can decide the first question better for themselves if they have a chance to visit a high school in operation before they make a final decision. It is so important that your eighth grade pupils go to high school that your influence should be very definitely in that direction for the rest of the year. Most of them can go if they want to."

Your eighth grade pupils are invited to be the guests of the Freedom high school faculty and pupils all day Tuesday May 12. The domestic science department of this school will prepare a noonday lunch for them. A special program will be put on for visitors in the afternoon. A special committee will meet them at the school in the morning, escort them to the different classrooms during the day, look to their comfort while they are guests, and see that they have every opportunity to get acquainted with the work of this school during the day.

"I am sure that your pupils will enjoy the day, and you are authorized to excuse them from your classes on this day, giving them credit for attendance on your attendance register—that is, if they spend the day as suggested."

PUPILS TO STUDY FOREIGN CUSTOMS

Each student will prepare an original notebook about one country, including all the research material and information available on the subject.

One student, Evelyn Last, will write a letter to the American consul in Poland to obtain information about the country which is her topic. Nearly every country in the world is represented in the list. Some of the students and the countries they will study are: Ruby Last, Japan; Neva Lettman, Spain; Bernice De Wall, Egypt; and Janet Wichmann, Ireland.

NEWSREEL TO SHOW DOGS BEING HONORED

Post Crescent Picture Will Be Presented at Appleton Theatre

The presentation of honor medals to dog heroes in New York is a part of the Appleton Post-Crescent newsreel to be presented Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Appleton theatre. Twelve of the dogs are decorated for fearless action in circumstances that might have meant death to their masters.

The newsreel shows native colonial troops in a colorful reception to Prince Humbert, Crown Prince of Italy, on his African journey with his bride. Chinatown in New York as thousands of Chinese from all parts of the nation gather in the oriental quarter for annual conventions of Hip Sing and On Leong, rival tong; a race driver crashing into a fence at Los Angeles, Calif., while driving at top speed; parts of the first Yale-Harvard Rugby game, which ended in defeat for Eli; and the homeric efforts of Ohio State University to upset the quarter-ville and medley events at Philadelphia. New paragraphs show the drastic campaign against lax motorists in Berkeley, Calif., a novel device which stores 144 cars in space for six, and a chimpanzee conducting a big game expedition in the wilds of Luna Park.

START TO LAY CONCRETE MONDAY ON ROUTE 114

Concrete for the unpaved section of Highway 114, west of Sherwood, will be poured Monday by the Koppko Construction company of Appleton. Part of the work on this highway was completed last year, but this stretch, of about a mile was left unpaved until spring. With favorable weather it is estimated that work of pouring concrete on the unpaved section of road will be completed in about eight days. The grading crew will follow immediately, and it is hoped this road will be open to traffic by the middle of summer.

As soon as the road is finished the American Legion at Sherwood will begin beautifying Kojetka's Corner, where Highways 114 and 10 intersect, about a mile and a half west of Sherwood. A large granite boulder has been secured and will be fitted with a bronze tablet. This memorial will form the centerpiece of the decorative scheme.

Dr. D. J. O'Connor resumes his regular office hours, Monday, May 4.

300 Rural School Graduates Register For Tour To Washington

TRIP TO START FROM APPLETON SUNDAY, MAY 24

More Complete Itinerary Is Planned by A. G. Meating This Year

More than 300 rural school graduates already have signed their intention of making the educational pilgrimage to Washington, D. C., from May 24 to 27, according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, sponsor of the trip. In addition, between 200 and 300 teachers, parents and friends, have indicated they will make the trip this year, the second time an Outagamie county graduate class will be taken to the national capital for commencement exercises.

The tour this year is being made, Mr. Meating said, at the express demand of the students and their parents. The demand first began to be noticeable last year, when Mr. Meating sent out letters asking the students where they wanted to go this year. The majority favored Washington.

This was followed by a second letter in which Mr. Meating sought to learn the feelings of the graduates' parents on the matter. Again there was a tremendous response in favor of Washington.

Mr. Meating then began making plans. While the tour cost $25 each last year, he decided that many matters of interest were omitted last year, and he hopes to include some of these in the itinerary. He then started negotiations with the railroad companies to secure a low price. Cost is $32.50.

Finally it was decided that the price this year would be $32.50. This will include, in addition to all the regular features offered last year, complete bus transportation in Washington, thus eliminating all walking; a limit of four to each room in Washington hotels and the use of downtown hotels entirely; meals in diners, ordered from regular menus; diner car service on the return journey; a copy of the group picture taken at the capitol steps; and a special tour to occupy one afternoon in Washington.

The pupils making the trip will have a choice of one of two special tours. The first will include the Annapolis Naval academy, with a chance to view the grounds of this military training school, its various buildings and battlements harbored in port. The second tour will include a visit to the Catholic monastery, a reproduction of the Holy Shrine in Europe; the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception; through the grounds of the Soldiers' Home; Rock Creek park; a visit to the Episcopal church and the tombs of Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey.

The trip will start from Appleton at seven o'clock Sunday morning, May 24. The special train will arrive in Chicago at 10 o'clock, and will continue that afternoon through the famous dune country of Indiana. About midnight the train will pass through Youngstown and Pittsburgh and the graduates will have an opportunity to get views of the flaming furnaces of steel mills. The next morning the train will pass through the Cumberland and Blue Ridge mountains, along the Potomac river into historical and picturesque Harper's Ferry where there will be a 45-minute stop.

Arrive in Capital
The train will reach Washington about 10 o'clock Monday morning, when the group will proceed to the United States capitol for a group picture on the steps. In the meantime the baggage of each will be transferred to the hotels. After the picture has been taken, the group will be taken through the capitol building, into the senate and congressional chambers, the hall of fame, etc., by government guides. They then will go to the Congressional library and the White House. From the White House the group will go to the hotel for luncheon. That afternoon will be devoted to the special tours. Dinners will be served at the hotels.

A motor coach trip with stops and visits at the Old New National museums, Lincoln Memorial and the East American museum are among the features of Tuesday morning's program. After luncheon at the hotel the group will tour the city in buses. Then they will proceed to Alexandria, Arlington, and Mt. Vernon, stopping at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and spending an hour and a half at the home of George Washington. After dinner at the hotel the return journey will start. The group will take meals in the diner on the way home, returning to Appleton at 7:30 Wednesday evening, May 27.

GOVERNOR APPROVES MORE ROAD CONTRACTS

Madison —(AP)— Governor La Follette today approved two more highway contracts which will permit construction work to be undertaken immediately.

One was for grading, draining and paving with concrete 6.7 miles of U. S. Highway 51 between Portage and Endeavor in Columbia county. Nelson, Mullen and Nelson, Inc., Minneapolis, secured the contract on a bid of $74,496.90.

The other contract calls for the construction of a bridge across the Eau Claire river between Schofield and Rothschild in Marathon county on U. S. Highway 51 and State highway 29. The bridge will have a 40 foot roadway and a six foot sidewalk. The contract went to the Wausau Iron Works, Wausau, for $67,789.75.

PENSION APPLETON MAN AFTER 31 YEARS SERVICE WITH ROAD

John Meggers, 71, 201 S. Walnut-st., last week ended 41 years of continuous service with the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. Mr. Meggers, who is retiring on a pension, said he would continue to live in Appleton. He plans to leave next week for Washington, D. C., for a three weeks visit with his son, John Meggers, Jr., who is employed by the government.

Mr. Meggers was born in Sheboygan-co., but moved to Clintonville in 1890 where he secured his first job with the railroad, as a laborer on a bridge construction crew. He worked on this crew for 31 years until 1921 when he was appointed a flagman for the company and came to Appleton. For the last 10 years he served as flagman at the Jackman crossing.

WIDE PROGRAM IS COMPLETED BY LEGISLATURE

Authorization of Grade Crossing Project Aids Unemployment

Madison —(AP)— The legislature ran through a long, diversified program during the past week.

Among the measures considered, tax reform, labor, and conservation were prominent subjects. If any program of state received greater attention than another it was the governor's device for unemployment relief, accelerated by authorization of contracts for 11 grade crossing projects and receipt by the state unemployment commission of bids for 13 others. The governor signed two contracts totalling $294,015 for highway work.

Concurrence in the Nixon resolution for the initiative and referendum was the senate's biggest contribution during the week. The resolution must pass the next legislature and be approved at a referendum before the people are given the privilege of initiating and rejecting laws at the polls.

The lower house was scene of the most spirited demonstration when the bill for an eight-hour day in industry hurled the engrossment of a strong labor union. Assemblyman George Hampel, Milwaukee socialist and Harold Groves, Madison administration leader, wrote the bill and its substitute amendment which was approved by a vote of 69 to 17.

The bill excludes employers of less than three employees, persons engaged in farm labor or private domestic service and watchmen. It provides payments of time and one-half for all work in excess of eight hours per day.

Rubin Scores Victory
Assemblyman Ben Rubin, Milwaukee socialist, was credited with one of the best legislative performances of the present session when he covered a bill to label all Wisconsin goods made by prison labor, once indefinitely postponed and secured its engrossment. The bill favors a gradual termination of all prison labor contracts by 1934 and approval of shipment into Wisconsin of goods from only those states where prison contracts are ineffective but which admit Wisconsin prison goods.

Labor gained prominence in the senate when Sen. Eugene Clifford, Juneau, introduced a resolution asking the state highway commission to investigate reports that Wisconsin labor is not being given preference on road construction projects. An investigation of the conservation commission, requested in a resolution introduced in the assembly during the previous week, was formally ordered when the house adopted the measure. Assemblyman S. J. Gwilt, author of the resolution, was named chairman of the investigating committee, which includes assemblymen Moulton Coff, C. Erle Ingman, J. J. Huber, and Speaker Charles B. Perry were also assigned.

Two important taxation measures received legislative support while another was indefinitely postponed. A bill to repeal the reciprocity feature in the state inheritance tax law was engrossed in the assembly by a good margin, while the Groves gift tax bill was approved. Meanwhile, the 1931 bill for an additional income tax on net interest, introduced early in the session, was killed by an overwhelming vote, featured by an insubstantial drive by Arthur Hildt, Abnott, to save the measure by a drastic amendment.

The gift tax bill, drafted by Prof. Groves, would supplant a law held unconstitutional which permitted the taxation of gifts given within six years before death on the grounds they were offered in anticipation of death and to escape inheritance taxes.

Relief from monopolistic control of milk prices, promised the farmer in the Duff bill for municipal competition in the dairy industry, was denied when the assembly failed the measure by a close vote.

The tenure bill for teachers in Milwaukee vocational schools went to the governor following approval by the senate.

criminal prosecution for what he regards as legitimate endeavor, then planning on an important scale will become possible."

In passing a resolution urging that the chamber sponsor a campaign to find definitely just where government is competing with private endeavor, and then to pursue a vigorous and continuous campaign against such competition, the chamber announced more definitely than ever before that business men hold this one point of pre-eminent importance.

Social planning with companies and by small groups of companies was heartily praised. But any suggestion that a general economic planning council that would be under government supervision be set up met vigorous opposition.

Whether the efforts of individual business to solve the unemployment and wage problem will be general enough to have a thorough effect on business troubles was doubted by at least two men—Professor Joseph Willits, professor of economics at the University of Pennsylvania, an invited speaker at the convention, and Edward Flene, Boston merchant.

Mr. Barnes, in his speech, foresaw that some sort of advisory national planning body growing out of trade associations might result as soon as the associations were allowed to develop in a more thorough cooperative manner.

WORLD CONFERENCE
Washington —(AP)— Business leaders of 46 nations are going to try to find out next week what they can do to improve economic conditions without the aid of their governments.

In preliminary discussions emphasis has been placed upon the belief that delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce convention here next Monday through Saturday must solve their own problems.

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the American committee of the organization, said it is certain "that a recovery can only be brought by cooperative individual effort and not by governmental action."

Among other suggestions will be one advanced by the Austrian national committee that regional exceptions be granted to the most-favored nation clauses in commercial treaties. A resolution that group will submit as part of its report holds that these exceptions should be allowed when they are "intended to facilitate material exchanges between the countries concerned."

This report has been prepared by Dr. Richard Riedl, a former assistant secretary of the Austrian Department of Economics, and the meeting which it is presented will be devoted to discussions to tariff policies, the effects of duties and customs administration as well as kindred subjects. National debts and reparations payments may come up at this time.

At the opening session Monday, delegates will attempt to settle to their satisfaction the cause and effect of the depression. Pictures of conditions will be presented by representatives from Europe, Latin America, the Far East and the United States. George Thomas, former premier of Belgium, and president of the international chamber, will provide over these discussions.

At subsequent meetings the differences between trade practices will be analyzed. Dr. Alberto Pirelli of Italy, initiating the debates. This point will include references to commodity production costs, wage scales, mass production and distribution methods, about which an exhaustive study has been made by a special committee Dr. Pirelli heads.

President Hoover will address the organization at its initial session Monday.

It is one of seven speeches he announced March 14 he would make this spring.

He has spent considerable time preparing his address and only this week cancelled an engagement in Virginia to dedicate the Lee Memorial highway in order to have sufficient time in which to complete it.

This is followed by high pressure over Wisconsin which is bringing fair weather to most of the western states and much cooler to the upper lakes and upper Missouri Valley. Fair weather is expected in this section tonight and Sunday, with light to heavy frost tonight.

Due to inclement weather conditions, the opening of the Tom Thumb Golf Courses has been postponed.

FIRE THREATENS CARS PARKED IN GARAGE

The top was burned off a Ford car owned by Henry Pledler, 1424 N. Madison, about 10 o'clock this morning when the machine caught fire from a short circuit. Another machine, which stood in the same garage, was slightly damaged by the flames. The second machine is owned by Edgar Johnson. The fire department was called and put out the flames before the garage caught fire.

The department also was called out about 10 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a rubbish fire, at the Appleton Woolen Mills, S. Oneida-st., threatened a nearby garage. The blaze was put out without serious damage.

GROUP DISCUSSES PROBLEM OF LABOR

Manufacturers Urged to Study Present Condition and Seek Remedy

Thirty manufacturers conferred with Don D. Lesocher, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Citizens' Committee on Employment at an informal meeting at the Vocational school Friday evening.

Mr. Lesocher painted a picture of present conditions, explained probable causes, and showed where the manufacturer can help to regularize employment. The manufacturers were urged to organize and study conditions so that they may do everything in their power to improve the present situation. It was pointed out that it is much better to give all workers employment some of the time, than some of the workers employment all of the time.

LETTERS ASK BISHOP TO RESIGN OFFICE

the same time, Bishop Moore said, letters also had been received supporting Cannon.

In the petition, the Virginia prelate, who was vindicated by the last quarterly conference of the church and later by a group of elders of charges based upon stock market transactions and other allegations never made public, is described as "doing the church untold harm."

"Reports that gravely reflect on the moral character of Bishop Cannon have been published throughout the country," the petition recited. "He has made no public statement that would vindicate himself or that would relieve the church of the embarrassment which she suffers by reason of the fact that he is one of her bishops."

The petitioners asked that "our bishops find some means to restore confidence in the moral integrity of the church," adding that "the least that could be asked of Bishop Cannon under these circumstances is that for the good and peace of the church he resign his office."

Church officials have pointed out that the college was unable to oust a bishop and therefore action probably would be taken only on the question of Cannon's elevation to the presidency. By the rule of rotation he should have achieved that office last December, but he waived his claim because formal charges then were pending against him.

ORDER STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF ORDINANCE

Committee Wants Dance Halls and Roadhouses Closely Watched

Strict enforcement of the provisions of the county dance hall ordinance was ordered yesterday by the county dance hall license committee. Sheriff John Lappen and District Attorney Stanley A. Stald were instructed by the committee to enforce all the provisions of the ordinance, especially that part fixing the closing hour at 1 o'clock.

Several changes in the measure will go into effect next week after they have been published, as provided by law. These changes were voted by the county board at its session last week.

The new provisions extend the closing hour from 12:30 to 1 a. m., and direct that in the future all applications for a dance permit must be accompanied by the $5 which is to be paid to the dance hall supervisor. The first change was made by the county board so that the county would have uniform regulation with Winnebago-co. The second provision was made, it was brought out at the board meeting, so that dance supervisors would not feel they were obliged to the dance hall owners for their pay.

The dance committee yesterday pointed out to the sheriff that the 1 o'clock closing hour means that after that hour there shall be no music in any roadhouse or dance hall, and there shall be no refreshments served.

Violators of the law are to be arrested and taken into court, the committee instructed.

In the future, the committee decided all dances in the county must be staged in licensed halls. This means that school dances, barn dances, etc., cannot be held unless the places have been licensed. Violations of this regulation also will be prosecuted.

District Attorney Stald pointed out Saturday that the closing hour governs all soft drink parlors as well as dance halls. The legislature, he said, has passed a bill, and the governor has signed it, making county closing hour ordinances effective on soft drink parlors, outside of villages and cities, as well as on dance halls and roadhouses.

Chicago Employes Face Future Without Salary

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1931, By Cons. Press Chicago—(CPA)—The 15,000 Chicago school teachers now working for no pay, are expected by the mayor to be joined after next week by the remaining employes of this city, including police and firemen.

While workers enjoy these salaryless paydays, as the result of a bare treasury, bankers and politicians wage a tug-of-war over tax reform. Tangled in the fight are the makings of a local political revolution. Until it is settled creditors of Chicago may scratch for their money.

At the base of Chicago's recurring financial trouble lies an antiquated tax assessing system—one which has been the very heart of some political machines. As the price of solvency, bankers, who already have loaned $254,000,000 to the city, the schools and the county, demand that this system be reformed by the legislature now in session.

What they ask appears mild enough. It simply is that an apportioned assessor of property values replace 38 elective assessors and a board of tax review, and that definite unchangeable dates for assessment and collection of taxes be established.

Remove Political But such a change would take much of the political power from taxing. Under the existing system taxes have been used to reward and to punish groups of voters. Their political effectiveness has been great. Consequently, politicians fight any attempted change. Bankers, however, have issued an ultimatum that the price of more borrowing will be reform and unless they back down as a result of offers to effect economies in the local governments, reform is likely.

The system broke down in 1928 causing two years' delay in tax collections. Consequently, 1929 taxes are falling due on May 15 of this year. In addition, 1930 taxes are due in September of the present year, making the twelve-month tax burden on Chicago citizens over $500,000,000.

Already the city has spent all of the 1929 tax money and all of the 1930 tax money as well as half of the 1931 prospective tax money—none of which has been collected. Only by borrowing at 6 per cent interest has the city managed to keep going. A year ago it took $74,000,000 in public subscriptions to provide money for operating.

On top of other worries, officials are confronted with a real tax revolt in which taxpayers are refusing to meet their bills. Unprecedented defaults have accrued with 29,000 parcels of property offered at tax sales last year and over $50,000,000 of taxes still unpaid.

Bankers have been slow to a solution of the problem, but they hesitate to let the city have more money until it promises to quit making a political football of the tax machinery.

LAKE FLIES ARRIVE TO HARASS COTTAGERS

Along with the early spring weather that visited Appleton Thursday and Friday came lake flies, according to cottagers at Lake Winnebago. Thousands appeared Friday. And with the drop in temperature early Saturday morning the flies settled wherever it might be warm, literally covering cottages. The cold weather is expected to kill off most of them, and the northwest wind probably will blow others out over the lake.

INJURES ARM

NEW OUTBREAK IN GANG WARS IS EXPECTED

Believe "Mobs" Are Fighting to Hold Business in Depression

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1931 by Cons. Press.
New York—(CPA)—Sinister rumblings and upheavals in the gang world, with battles between rival liquor and narcotic "mobs," are believed here to mark the beginning of an extensive deflection of underworld interests along the Atlantic seaboard.

Hard times have hit the mobsters and like rats in a trap they are beginning to gnaw each other. The Greene-co uproar, brought to a climax when Jack (Legs) Diamond was pumped full of buckshot Monday, grows out of a more or less desperate and disordered state of affairs among the crime syndicates, with their old interlocking directorates broken up and maverick killers invading each other's strongholds.

New York liquor prices, within the last year, have slumped faster than United States steel. Wholesale prices are in a savage price war and trigger fingers are light and wary. The crew of the Royal stranger, down from Halifax nearly starved to death trying to dispose of its cargo. For four months the ship lay outside New York harbor, its captain haggling with emissaries from shore.

Supply Too Big
It returned to Halifax early this week, loaded with bitterness and gloom. There is plenty of demand, but a heavy over-supply and a threat of considerable technological unemployment among the brewers, distillers and liquor men.

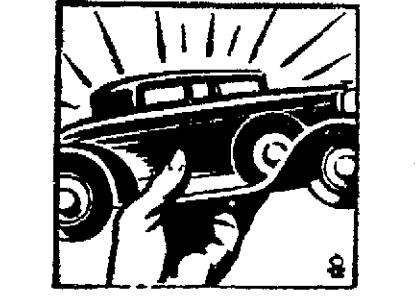

These conditions have started the city mobs scouting for the greener pastures of the summer resort regions, where they collide with the old established interests. Joe Coglianes, Brooklyn beer runner, invading Diamond's territory in the Catskills, ran afoul of Paul Quatrochi, Diamond lieutenant, with ensuing casualties and Quatrochi is now under arrest for felonious assault.

Joe (Boss) Masseria, finding the Harlem pay streak pinching out, led a foray into the Capone-Aiello preserves of Brooklyn and stepped into a bullet and a grand funeral. Van Heflin's big beer mob started spreading out on Long Island and was nailed by the federal officials with a string of Minnesota policemen and hotel owners now standing trail. Out in the apple jack regions of New Jersey and New York there are wars and rumors of war with the intrusion of the city beer racketeers on the simple pastoral arts of the farmers. Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, commander of the big Bronx beer mob, has been accused by business rivals lately of getting out of bounds and reprisals are looked for.

Deals in Drugs
Evidence unearthed here indicates that Diamond's beer running activities are secondary to his narcotic interests. His trip to Amsterdam, just before he was shot at the Monticello hotel in New York last October, is now believed to have been on drug business, which if successful, would have made him the successor of the late Arnold Rothstein.

Governor Roosevelt, in dispatching Attorney General Bennett to Greene-co, with instructions to dynamite the Diamond mob, establishes a precedent in this state which repealed its liquor enforcement act five years ago. For the first time, state and federal officials are actually working together in a drive on liquor and drug racketeers.

It is not unusual for the drug vendors to establish headquarters in some charming rural region. A few years ago, Monk Eastman, "Dopey Bonnie" and their allies made of

PATHETIC FIGURES—THE POOR KID WHO STRUGGLED FOR HALF AN HOUR TO FINALLY MEMORIZE THE WRONG GOLDEN TEXT!

Movie Stars Are Victims Of Rackets Of Many Kinds

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
(Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press)

Hollywood—(CPA)—With the arrest of the publisher of a local scandal sheet and the consequent flurry about blackmail in Hollywood, comes the sudden realization that a film star's life is not a comfortable one. There are far more rackets in Hollywood than in any other town of its size in the world, and the rackets are not confined to out and out blackmail, either.

There is, for example, the game which is played under the misnomer of charity. Rither and yon with great frequency there spring up new associations for the alleviation of something or other. Always actors have had the reputation of being big hearted. In Hollywood, however, they don't get a chance to be that. "Your share is $500 or $5,000," says the charity representative. And, by heck, it is. Because if the actor doesn't come across with his assessment, the new fledged charity organization prints his name in a list of those who haven't yet answered the call.

In addition, there's the charity fund which the individual studio or group of studios is raising on behalf of the out-of-work.

Want Big Funds
Mentally it is the aim of each studio to raise a bigger fund than the next and a means of attaining this end is to assess every actor a certain sum, which may be a week's pay or more. If the actor doesn't come across, as a certain star recently declined to do, although he offered to hold three individual out-of-work conferees from the studio list, there's lots and lots of trouble and possibly the decliner finds himself likewise out of work soon. Hollywood, by the way, is just recovering from the shock of learning that the head of a big studio donated a couple of thousand dollars to an out-of-work charity fund on Tuesday and on Thursday fired a couple of hundred employees.

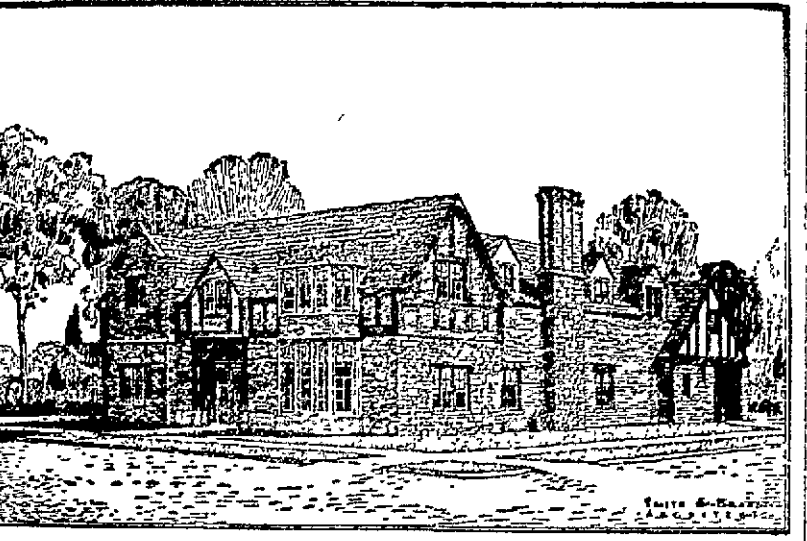

There is, too, the racket of the magazine which prints the actor's picture and then sends him a bill for $25. And of the small-time publication which runs a grand story about a star and then requests a page ad. And of the fan writer for Jack London's "valley of the moon" in California, a drug distributing center for the Pacific coast.

BILL ALLOWS BOARD SECRETARY SALARY

A bill, introduced in the state legislature by Oscar J. Schmieg, Appleton, assemblyman from the first Outagamie-co district, permitting a county board to allow the secretary of the soldiers' relief commission a salary of $500 annually, became a law this week when it was signed by Governor Philip LaFollette. Before the secretary of such a commission can receive this salary, however, it is necessary for the county board to pass a measure providing for such payment.

The Outagamie-co commission is known as the Soldiers and Sailors Relief commission. Its members are: Major Charles A. Greene, chairman; James Balliet, secretary; and Al Hecht, all of Appleton.

Chevrolet
has struck a popular new note in motor-car styling

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably wide-spread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile. Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlamps and arched tie bar—all gleaming in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-slung body lines, sweeping fenders and massive wire wheels strikingly suggest the car's speed and power. And the appeal of Chevrolet's beauty is made more pronounced by the fact that all models are available in a variety of colors.

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

LOOK AT ECONOMIC CONDITIONS BEFORE BUYING SECURITIES

Political Conditions of Foreign Countries Are Not All-important

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press

New York—With foreign government bonds, particularly those of South American debtors, so severely depressed in market price the question constantly arises whether they have reached an attractive buying level. Certainly the yield is tempting, or would be if one were at all sure of continuity of interest payments.

Of course, one cannot be sure and that is the reason for the high return. It is safe to say, however, that economic conditions are of greater importance than political changes in determining an investment program with regard to these foreign bonds. It is not a revolution or the threat of a revolution that need be feared so much as it is difficulties brought about by continuous fall in the world price of the commodity the country in question has to export.

For example, the situation in Bolivia, one of the South American nations that 'defaulted on certain of its dollar bonds, will depend more on the price of tin than it will on the make-up of the particular government that may happen to be in power. Similarly, it is the coffee market which is the determining factor in appraising the value of Brazilian securities as it is the wheat outlook which makes for prosperity or the reverse in Argentina.

Granted the good faith of all these governments, their willingness to pay, no administration can overcome the effect on its people of a price collapse in its most important product. Nor can any government permanently control prices, not even the government of the United States, as the record of the Farm Board demonstrates. The forces that govern prices are too strong to be set aside by any law or any board or commission constituted by law. Experiments along this line have invariably failed.

The conclusion then is as far as the South American bonds go that the risks of purchase will continue until there are definite signs of a slump of commodity price stabilization but of commodity price recovery. When that point is reached the form of government or the party in power will not make much difference to the American buyer of South American bonds.

The above deal presents complicated bidding situations at all points except as to the opening bid by South. Even there those who adhere to the antiquated system of bidding a No Trump rather than a four card suit when having three suits stopped and a worthless doubleton in the hand would disagree with the correct opening bid of One Diamond.

Salient Points of Bidding

Contract: South opens the bidding with One Diamond. West is very nearly strong enough to make an informative double. While such bid would not be bad, it would appear better to pass in the hopes that partner might make an independent bid which could be highly supported, whereas the response to the informative double could not be. North has exceptional support for the Diamond and his question is as to whether he should give a jump assist to Diamonds or make a low Heart bid hoping for a rebid by South. If he should make the

STICKL BOUND OVER IN KIDNAPING CASE

Green Bay—(CP)—John Stickl, 22, Little Rapids, was bound over for trial May 18 at the conclusion of his preliminary hearing in municipal court here Friday on charges of kidnaping.

The youth has confessed, sheriff's officers said, he abducted Helen Verheyen, 14, from the home of James Miller, Little Rapids, the night of April 19.

In default of $2,000 bonds, Stickl was held in the county jail. Meanwhile, his father John Stickl, Sr., became a patient in the State Hospital for the Insane at Oshkosh. He became unbalanced Wednesday. Members of his family said he had brooded over what he considered the disgrace his son had brought upon him.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Verheyen testified before Municipal Judge R. J. Monahan Friday that Stickl had not been given permission to take Helen from the Miller home. They admitted, however, knowledge of the young couple's desire to marry last December.

THE "DONHAM" PLAN

Much thought is being given to the threat of communism as exemplified by the Russian soviets. By many it is asserted to be one of the great issues confronting the world.

By the average citizen the soviet program is considered as something entirely outside of and foreign to our daily life. It seems to him to be a crazy experiment which should have no justification for existence among intelligent people, and that eventually the Russian communistic program, after meeting with an apparent preliminary success, will, either by a violent or sudden upheaval or by a process of rapid evolution, be toppled like a house of cards and transformed back into the old capitalistic or survival-of-the-fittest system in which most of us now function in our struggle for existence.

But many men of intellect throughout the world are of the opinion that the Russian experiment will not prove a complete failure and that the reason for possible success lies in the fact that it has a plan.

Recently a book was published entitled "Business Adrift" by Wallace Brett Donham, Harvard university. It has created comment among economists and students of social philosophy and received such serious consideration that the propositions which he has discussed have come to be known as the "Donham Plan."

Mr. Donham insists American business must have a plan. Capitalism cannot compete with communism without it. Business leaders have not succeeded in making capitalism entirely secure. It is the duty of every man, provided he desires to maintain the capitalistic system, to devote himself personally to the development of an intelligent economic plan.

More specifically, he notes that it is the present plan of American business to secure a great measure of its future prosperity from the exploitation of foreign trade, but that a violent commercial rivalry between this country and western Europe will weaken us both. Should the soviet autocracy, largely through assistance of capitalistic societies, become able to raise its standards of living, and should western Europe be defeated by us in the struggle for the open markets of the world, we might find ourselves menaced with a completely bolshevized Europe.

For this reason England and Germany must be successful commercially. This is, according to Donham, one vital reason for the cancellation of war debts. It is not a moral question, but one which is purely economic.

He thinks our prosperity of the last decade was false. "We have almost reached the saturation point in the absorption of our benefits. What we must have is a plan which will insure the maintenance of wages at a high level, provide for the security of employment, and increased leisure for everyone to enjoy the benefits we have developed."

If it does nothing else the book will stimulate the mind of the American business man to constructive thoughts on the great problems which are today confronting capitalism, and to intelligently develop and apply some definite plans to combat the communistic clouds which appear from time to time on the industrial horizon.

ELECTING SUPREME COURT JUDGES

The senate of Wisconsin has wisely defeated the measure to alter existing laws relating to the number of members of the supreme court elected at one time.

The Wisconsin constitution provides that, "The Supreme court shall consist of seven justices . . . to be elected as now provided, not more than one each year."

Of course the provision that only one might be elected each year was inserted with a wise and understanding purpose. It was written in the realization that the position was of extreme importance and that in selecting a justice the attention of the people should not be divided nor should they be permitted to become careless because having a number of vacancies to fill at one time, but their study and consideration must be riveted upon the qualities of the presented candidates, a thing to be accomplished best by filling but one vacancy in one year.

Undoubtedly the proposed measure was introduced because of the unusual situation arising during Mr. Kohler's term, four justices dying and one resigning, and thus giving one governor the first opportunity in the state's history of appointing a majority of the court.

The mere fact that in eighty-two years of statehood but one governor came into possession of so much authority, should be enough reason to approve existing conditions. That an existing law accomplishes a set purpose with but one exception in eighty-two years is high enough testimonial to its value.

LAPSUS LINGUAE?

Throwing the lie around the room is not a new sport in a democracy, rather is it one of the rights of the free born, particularly in a deliberative body such as the state senate.

"Senator Goodland's statement . . . was maliciously and meanly false," said Senator Cashman who represents the hardy and vigorous Lake Shore region to our east.

Is this the Lie Direct, the Lie Circumstantial or the Lie Inferential? One must observe that Senator Cashman did not stoop to the use of the "short and ugly" word but only observed that his colleague's statement was "false," "malicious" and "mean," which leaves a lot to the imagination. Oh, yeah!

Despite the cautious finesse of the speaker in his choice of words we are compelled to class his statement as the Lie Emphatic.

And now Senator Goodland throws aside all restraint, probably in the fear that he might otherwise be misunderstood, and carefully whips out and throws the Lie Direct.

Lieutenant-governor Huber is astonished that any member of the senate dare use such language and thereby trespass upon his corner of the "stuff of denunciation" and pounds the gavel with vehemence and force. During the ra-ta-ta-tat of the gavel, Cicero and Cataline recover their breath, their seats and their equilibrium, although remaining a bit purple in the face.

In ye olden time when knights did battle for a surly dislike of the color of the other's whiskers or a smirk from a lady fair, whose unwashed face was mistaken for the crimson of a blush, there was the rule that "if one knight hits the other, he knocks him off his horse, and if he misses he tumbles off himself," which furnished real excitement to the gathering yokels and yeomen since the fun becomes exquisite only when someone bites the dust.

We have gone far since then and stand in bewildered awe at the needless perspiration of those days, and the marvels of our own advancement.

Opinions Of Others

DAIRMEN SPEAK OUT

Dairymen of Wisconsin, gathered at Fond du Lac, express bitterness over conditions that now prevail. That is understandable. After all their work and worry in developing good herds and fine dairy plants, doing it with pride and genuine interest in their achievement, they are selling milk below the actual cost of production which the farmer and the cotton planter have been standing for a long time.

But what do they do in this extremity? They call upon government to do something for them, just as the wheat farmer and the cotton farmer called, "Action from the legislature"—more direct results from the state departments dealing with agriculture—these are the cries. But what can the lawmakers do?

What can the Wisconsin legislature do for dairymen by way of changing these conditions? What can the gentlemen at Madison do about hens that lay too many eggs in a mild winter? Dairymen say too many other states have taken up dairying. That is true. Wisconsin has boasted of its profits in the past, has welcomed delegations from other states to show them how to go into the dairy business, has sold them cows to start with. Now cheese and butter from Missouri, Texas, and Washington take markets away from us. Well, perhaps we weren't so wise to sell them cows, but what can the legislature do about this? Legislature out of existence the dairy herds of Wisconsin?

The dairy farmers believe the method of setting the cheese market at Plymouth is wrong. Very well, investigate and if it is wrong correct it. They saw some of the companies handling dairy products during 1930 declare fine dividends, though they themselves were running deep into the red. Very well, fight for a more equitable distribution of profits from the trade. That is legitimate and sound. Use co-operative marketing where necessary. Push up the consumption of milk, butter and cheese. But don't run after political nostrums. These have never yet affected a cure. For all the promises of the politicians, and they have given them who have tried them a pain in the stomach.—Milwaukee Journal.

MAY IS now officially under way and the hills have commenced to pour in and just when you thought there'd be something left out of the package, you find out what several kinds of a darned optimist you are . . . and if you hang on for a couple of more months, perhaps you may see warm weather . . . and if you hang on for a couple of more years, prosperity will be back and everything will be lovely . . . but all you have to do is hang on . . . and maybe that won't be so easy . . .

After all, you aren't so bad off. Over in Russia no less than 99,610 members of the Communist party have been expelled as undesirable.

And that, Tillie, is getting pretty low.

H. I. Phillips, who makes money writing a column, explains what a jury does when it's out so many hours. H. I. takes his testimony from a veteran juror.

"They," he says, "spend most of their time walking back and forth and asking 'Gotta Match?'"

What's a Depression or So?

There he sat—he must have been at least seventy years old—on a cement platform behind a store. A full white beard made him look patriarchal . . . a leg, amputated at the knee and replaced with an old-fashioned crutch-effect, was strangely dignified . . . a cane beside him shared that dignity . . . the sun smiled on his mellowed old figure . . .

Contented, he sat there . . . puffing on a . . . on a cigarette!

Texas is one of Prohibition's strongholds and Texas is entirely in favor of national prohibition, particularly for the bad, bad cities of the middle west and east.

But of course, you can always get a drink in Texas if you want it. That, Tillie, is something entirely different. Just how, we dunno. But we've never been to Texas, either.

Somebody says the way to clear up crime in the big cities is to do something about the lawyers who defend the out-and-out criminals.

That's easy—just arrange it so nobody gets paid.

Go'bye to the streetcars in another town. This one is Galesburg, Illinois. And the tracks are to be taken up at once.

A hickory tree is to be planted as a memorial to Robert LaFollette, Sr. Which is quite a noble idea. But for a lot of politicians, they'll have to erect windmills someday if they want to be appropriate.

EVEN THE WRENS ARGUE

The wrens have found a house they like and now they're moving in.
And Jennie Wren is bossing things, as women always do.
The silly male is arguing and kicking up a din,
As if what's right and proper for a modern home he knew.

He's found a bit of shiny stuff I know he wants to keep.
But Jennie Wren won't have it and she's plainly told him so.
I saw her just this morning toss it on the rubbish heap,
And saw him take it back again and heard her answer "no."

Three times he's carried it above, three times she's tossed it out.
Three times he's pleaded with her to admit his treasure rare.
In angry tones she's told him that she knows what she's about
And for such a foolish trinket there's no inch of space to spare.

I chuckle as I watch them, for the self same things I've heard
And I know I'll hear them over every time I start to roam.
The house is woman's province, and the place would be absurd
If she let in every horror that a man comes luging home.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, May 5, 1906

Marriage licenses had been issued to Edward J. Hoffman and Pearl E. Meyer, Appleton; Richard H. Schneider and Rose Freiders, Appleton.

County Superintendent of Schools E. A. Meating was to leave for Madison the following week where he was to attend both the meeting of the County Superintendents' association and the state convention of county superintendents.

Frank Lloyd was a Neenah business visitor that day.

Dr. Earl Douglas and Richard Kluttsch left that afternoon for the northern part of Waupaca county where they were to spend a week fishing.

Miss Mabel Volter and Miss Mabel Rogers were to entertain a number of friends at their cottage at Otawana Beach the following day.

William H. Zuehlke had been appointed aide-de-camp on the staff of C. C. Brainerd, commander of the Department of Wisconsin, United States Spanish War Veterans.

TEN YEARS AGO

Saturday, April 30, 1921

Fifty coal mines in Great Britain had already been destroyed by flooding, indicating the extent to which the entire structure of British industry was collapsing under pressure of the miners' strike.

Applications for marriage licenses were made the previous day by Richard A. Buxton and Irene J. Hinchin, Appleton; Ben Schumacher, Appleton, and Ella Sauer, Mattoon.

The Misses Leone and Esther Kotke, 351 Drew-st., entertained at a miscellaneous shower the previous Thursday evening in honor of their sister, Edna, whose marriage to Arthur Luedtke was to take place soon.

Mrs. W. L. Conkey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Conkey, returned the previous day from Chicago where she had completed a trained nurse's course at St. Luke hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Zuehlke and daughter, Lenora, were to return to their home in Appleton that day after spending the winter months in St. Petersburg, Fla.

DIATHERMY AND FOCAL INFECTION.

In view of all the teeth and tonsils we regular doctors have sacrificed to the focal infection theory in years past, in many instances without benefit to anybody except our own or dentists' pocketbooks, one might hesitate to bring this up now. That is, in practice. In print some of us do not hesitate to bring anything up, it seems. The more "regular" we are, the nearer the throne, the less we care about the capers we cut in print.

Dr. Dan McKenzie is consulting surgeon of the Central London Throat and Ear hospital and otolaryngologist (throat and ear specialist) of the French hospital in London. Quite a lad in his way. Not THE McKenzie whose name is attached to the ingenious gadget we used to slice off the tonsils when I was a youth in practice. Dan, they tell me, is one of the big boys of the profession in England—for all I know he may even have an office in Harley street, but even if he hasn't he must be quite a guy or else we'd hear a good deal more raising from the throat men in this country about McKenzie's carryings-on.

McKenzie has recently perpetrated a book. It is a quaint little volume, from the literary point of view, but as practical as Sears Roebuck's catalogue. McKenzie is the man who made all the old timers in this country groan and grit their teeth by announcing a year ago that he regarded diathermy extirpation of the tonsils as the method of choice for adults (tho it is not suitable for young children).

It is notable that McKenzie is the foremost authority in England and Dr. Lewis J. Silvers, the leader in this field in America, draw almost identical conclusions. Indeed the two experts might have collaborated on this passage in McKenzie's book: " . . . patients quite frequently report improvements in their remote symptoms, such as lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism and so on, immediately or soon after the first applications of diathermy. The explanation probably is that . . . and now I quote from Silvers.

"Electrocoagulation is the explanation. That much may be accomplished in almost any case in the first treatments. We do not know however when the focus is completely destroyed, and so we should insist on seeing the patient over a period of months."

Now McKenzie again. "So much improvement indeed may attend the early applications that it may be difficult to persuade patients to pursue the treatment to its logical end in complete eradication. But it can be pointed out to them that the immediate improvement of the remote symptoms is a temporary sterilization of the tonsil, and that if some tonsil tissue be left it will almost inevitably become infected later on, and lead to a return of the old symptoms."

That jawbreaker quoted from Silvers—"cryptocyst" means cutting out or encircling or obliterating the crypt, the little hole or cavity in the tonsil where the streptococci or other germs have a foothold.

Both Silvers and McKenzie concede that if the septic focus in the tonsil is sterilized or destroyed total eradication of the normal tonsil tissue may be unnecessary. Neither of them, so far as I can learn, offers any definite reason for the theory that total extirpation of the tonsil is ordinarily advisable. I think they are both laboring under the obsession that identifies the old Spanish custom of attacking any and all tonsils at sight. Or maybe they're just trying to let the old timers down easy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Which Side To Sleep On.

Many years ago our old doctor told me always to sleep on the right side, as the blood starts out from the heart on its right side to be distributed to the entire body . . . Miss McGee.

Answer.—Well, nowadays it starts out from the left side of the heart. But no matter. Whichever side you lie on, the blood must climb to the other side eventually if not now, so why bother about that? The only health rule is to sleep in whatever posture you find comfortable.

It Won't Wash.

Perhaps it is just coincidences, but in the past few days a good many letters have consisted of three parts: first, telling me how honest and intelligent I am and how confident the correspondent is in my opinion and the certainty that I don't mind being grinded, etc., second, a threat of these doctors around here for their narrow views and general untrustworthiness; finally, will I kindly diagnose and prescribe for the correspondent's case which is thus and so. I may say that anybody who hopes to get a diagnosis or prescription thru this column stands a better chance of getting it if he omits the address hokum and asks for the favor without preamble.

Har Fever.
I want to thank you for the good your information has done me. I took the calcium lactate as you suggested, for nearly three months, and it practically wiped out the hay fever or whatever it was. I have never felt better. (Mrs. B. A. W.)

Answer.—Ten grains of calcium lactate four times a day for a period of not less than 10 weeks, seems to help many sufferers from bronchial asthma, hay fever, giant hives (angio-neurotic edema), recurring ordinary hives, and some cases of migraine (periodic on-again-sick headaches ushered in with an aura or warning which commonly takes the form of fortification spectra). Calcium lactate is harmless to take in any case. It may be taken in powder or tablet form, and a good drink of water should follow each dose. Occasionally it upsets the stomach. If it does, I'll refund whatever you've paid me for the advice. Try and get a refund!

A Lady Never Tells An Untruth.

I have taken the iodine ration as you recommend it, for over a year now, and have benefited greatly by it, chiefly by its having stopped my hair from going prematurely gray. I am 37, and at 26 my hair was going gray. (Mrs. A. F. C.)

Answer.—There may be something in what you say, Madam. A lot of other youngish ladies and gentlemen have assured me a proper iodine ration postpones the graying of the hair. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

FIGHTING AT ARRAS

On May 2, 1917, the British and Scottish troops made an impressive gain in the Battle of Arras after a week of hard fighting.

Two hundred prisoners were taken in the first forward sweep, when the Scots advanced in long lines and went through and beyond the village of Guenappe with loud shouts and cheers.

Philip Gibbs, war correspondent wrote:

"For nearly three hours the Scots were held up by the fire of German machine guns and artillery, and suffering many casualties, but they fought on, each little group of men acting with separate initiative, and it is to their great honor as soldiers that they destroyed every machine-gun post in front of them."

"Then between 11 and 12 in the morning the enemy developed his first counter-attack. He massed great numbers of men in the valley below Guenappe, flung a great storm of shell on to the village and then sent forward his troops to work around it. It was then that these Scottish troops showed their fierce and stubborn fighting spirit."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — Were the question asked around the capital as to what man in Uncle Sam's diplomatic service more nearly approached in appearance and in manner, a diplomat, the probable answer would be:

A bachelor, young "Ted" Marriner, of course.

This 33-year-old man, who for four years has been chief of the division of western European affairs in the state department, now looms as a possible choice for the post of assistant secretary of state to succeed William Castle, Jr., recently made vice-secretary.

His full name is James Theodore, but it is doubtful if James Theodore, a handful of people knew it. He is "Ted" to everybody.

Marriner is the type one naturally associates with diplomacy and things diplomatic.

Ex-Teacher

Tall, erect, with dark hair and a meticulously cropped black mustache, he has an air of distinction. He is immaculately and correctly groomed whether at his desk looking after routine affairs of his division or entertaining some visiting dignitary.

In conversation he is easy, chooses his words carefully, forms his sentences with skill. One is not surprised to learn that he taught English for two years at Radcliffe college and Harvard; that he holds a Ph. D. degree from the latter institution.

A bachelor, he is greatly in demand socially in Washington.

With the exception of two years as an instructor of English, diplomacy has been Marriner's career. This period of teaching was sandwiched in while he was working for his master's and Ph. D. degrees at Harvard. Almost immediately thereafter he entered the foreign service.

Back And Forth
His first assignment to a foreign post was as secretary to Stockholm in 1913. Three years later he went to Bucharest, and in 1923 he returned to Washington for duty at the state department.

In 1928 he was designated as a member of the American delegation to the preparatory commission for the disarmament conference, and in October of the same year went back to foreign duty at Bern as first secretary.

Since 1927 he has been chief of the division of western European affairs with headquarters at Washington. As such he was close to Secretary Stimson at the London naval conference and in the department.

He leaves soon, being required by law to see service in the field after service at the state department, to become counselor of the American embassy in Paris.

Who's Who On The Appleton Post-Crescent

Number 48

(This is the forty-eighth of a series of articles about members of the staff of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The articles will seek to acquaint readers of this newspaper with those persons as individuals and also will discuss the nature of their work. Members of the staff are presented in the order of their length of service. The forty-ninth article will appear Monday.)

Henry F. Zimmer, pressman, has a combination of jobs in the stereotyping room. He is an assistant to August Rehmer in the operation of the press, and he also casts all the plates for the press.

The mechanical processes involved in making a newspaper are much more complicated than the average reader realizes. After a page of type has been set up in the composing room, this page goes through four different processes before it is ready for the press. In the first step, a paper matrix is made from the type, then these "mats," are baked to drive out all the moisture, then they are placed over the mat in a mould and the step is the trimming and routing of the finished cylinder.

Mr. Zimmer, before coming to the Appleton Post-Crescent in 1926, worked in a garage in Hortonville for three years. He was employed by Winnebago-co. for a season and previous to that he worked for a silo builder for five years.

Tell Child To Ask For His Wants

BY ANGELO PATRI

"If you want a thing, ask for it." "If a thing is worth having it is worth asking for."

These old rules are sound. Teach a child to respect the rights of other children, other people, everywhere. In the family it is easy to get into the habit of using anything that is handy without regard to the owner's rights. "Oh, that's all right. It's Betty's."

But Betty has rights too. What hers is hers. What is Brother's is Brother's. Both ought to be taught to ask courteously for permission to use the other's things. And to return them promptly, in good order, with a courteous "thank you."

Nor are children to use their parents' things without permission. This means all the household things from books to cars, from brooms to jewelry. No matter how often a child is permitted to make use of a household possession he is to ask for permission to use it.

I am against borrowing and lending things. Each child ought to use his own things. Learn to make them do. If they won't, let them go. The Misses Dorothy Drabheim, June Patterson, Jane Cuppernill, Agnes Snell and Kathryn Uglow. Nettie Steninger Fullinwider will be the accompanist.

Using things without asking. Borrowing things without the thought of returning, is likely to train a child into loose ways. He is likely to get into the habit of taking what he wants when he wants it with never a thought of its ownership. With never a thought of his responsibility for it. He is likely to form the habit of pilfering.

I know that all children help themselves occasionally. True. But I know that, unless they are trained to a sharp appreciation of thine and mine, they get in to the way of helping themselves. This leads to mistakes more or less serious. It is easier to avoid the appearance of evil than it is to get rid of a habit of evil once it is formed.

When children ask each other's permission before using things that are personal property, when they learn to ask their parents for permission to use household belongings, there is established a family courtesy.

sy that goes far to harmonizing the group. There is established a certain respect, a formal acceptance of the personal rights of each member, that goes far to strengthening the family tie. There is established a certain character quality that makes for uprightness and fair dealing, for good manner and good breeding. It is easy to do this. Easy to teach a little child to say, "May I please use your looking glass, mother, I can't see in mine." Instead of allowing the child to use whatever it pleases when ever it chooses. It is easy to establish a fine habit that will kill off any chances of forming a very bad one.

This may seem schoolmasterish. It is. And a teacher of years of experience with boys and girls of all sorts, conditions and ages, and I insist that each child use his own things and borrow only in emergencies. Let me tell you why.

Using things without asking. Borrowing things without the thought of returning, is likely to train a child into loose ways. He is likely to get into the habit of taking what he wants when he wants it with never a thought of its ownership. With never a thought of his responsibility for it. NOW, WHO'S RIGHT?

Paris—Paris is a very wicked city, says Ferdinand Laurent, Municipal Councillor. Never has immorality been so rife in the city, despite police control. Jean Chappie, prefect of the Paris police, contends that, though the police are somewhat hampered by certain old-fashioned laws, Paris has never before been so free from vice.

Your FLOWER GARDEN

Those who already have gardens and ornamental plants growing about their homes should not neglect the plants already established. Shrubs which flower early are displaying blossoms from buds which formed last fall. Therefore, if you prune these shrubs before they flower you destroy flower buds which add to the beauty of the plants if allowed to develop.

Since the early spring flowering shrubs grow in this way, the time to prune them is just after they have flowered and before they make much new growth of stem and leaf. This will permit new growth during the summer and development of new blossom buds in the late summer for spring flowering.

In pruning flowering shrubs do not cut the ends off all of the branches so that you have nothing but flat or rounded-top shrubs. Such a pruning is contrary to the growth habit of the plant.

Prune them by cutting the old wood back to the ground and leave unpruned the younger branches. It is from the newer wood that the largest and greatest number of blossoms per inch of stem are produced.

Dead branches and any misdirected young growth which tends to cause congestion should also be removed.

Reducing Congestion
The most important aim to keep in mind in pruning flowering shrubs is that the shrub, after it has been pruned, will have the same appearance it had before pruning except that the growth will not be so dense. Like spring flowering shrubs, bearded iris may need some attention just after they have blossomed. This herbaceous perennial responds most favorably after division and transplanting. If the work is done in the late spring just after flowering, if your clumps of iris have grown so crowded that the rhizomes are crowded and the flowers are getting smaller each year the plants will benefit if they are dug up, divided and reset.

When the divisions in a new location where the soil has plenty of organic matter. Crop rotation is as effective with flowers as it is with lawn crops.

Support for Peonies
Peony varieties that bear large flowers than the stems can support in heavy winds and heating rains must have supports. These can be made by driving four stakes at equal distances just outside the outermost stems of the plant and surrounding stakes with wire or cord.

If the stems are very weak, additional support can be supplied by passing cords between the stalks, and fastening the cords to diagonal stakes.

If you want large blossoms on your peonies, remove the lateral buds as soon as they are the size of large peas. This will direct all blossom development to the terminal flower buds.

Cut the stems of the lateral buds down close to the point where they leave the main stem.

TOMORROW: Roses for the Garden.

Your Birthday

BY MARY BLAKE
If May 3rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from noon to 2:10 p. m., and from 5:45 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger hours are from 10 a. m. to 11:50 a. m., and from 2:50 p. m. to 4:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of May 3rd denote that there will be much work to do, but little inclination to do it. Attention will be sidetracked from things that matter to those of relative insignificance. Only by consistent effort, regardless of seductive influences, will the day prove of beneficial progressive value.

Children born on this May 3rd will make their mark in the world. If allowed to develop along the lines for which they themselves show a preference, their dispositions will be affectionate and their love deeply rooted. They will be actuated by high ideals, and will be clean-minded.

Born on May 3rd, in spite of an inner diffidence, you have very positive ideas and opinions. You are, however, fearful of voicing them. Self-consciousness is one of the contributory causes to this state of affairs. You are frightened by the spectre of appearing ridiculous. This is a matter of regret, as your views are original and enlightening. It tongue-tied, why not, when you know you have something worth-while to say, commit it to paper? As a writer, you would probably shine.

You do not lack determination, and are both persevering and energetic. When engaged in your work, your power of concentration

FARMER RIDES FIELD OF QUACK GRASS

Believes Method Will Insure Larger Yields of Alfalfa

Lawrence J. Kaufman, route 1, is removing ten acres of quack grass with a digger preparatory to planting a field with corn. The first year on his farm he got a seven loads of hay because his fields were overrun with quack. Two years ago he dug the quack out of a five-acre field and later got nine large loads of alfalfa from the field. He has rid 18 acres of the weed.

In Outagamie, Mr. Kaufman is one of the pioneers in the raising of alfalfa without a nurse crop, and in the setting aside of one-half of the acreage of his farm for the raising of alfalfa and sweet clover.

On April 7, after making a good seed bed, he sowed 6 acres of alfalfa without a nurse crop. All of the seed is sprouted and most of the plants reach above the surface in a very even stand. If the field gets an average rainfall, he expects to cut two crops on the field this summer. Mr. Kaufman's plan is successfully in the hands of the large farms of Waupaca.

In another field, Mr. Kaufman seeded 10 acres of alfalfa with a nurse crop of Wisconsin barley. The alfalfa is above the surface and all the seed has sprouted. He sprinkled an old meadow this spring with sweet clover.

is very great, and you accomplish much more than the average farmer. Admirers who have quite a few, stimulated by what you have said, but by what you have done.

Your nature is a kind and an affectionate one, and your temper is amenable up to a certain point. When however, the demon that is in you, as in all of us, is aroused, the results are somewhat devastating. Such happenings are, fortunately infrequent.

You excel at sports, and though a modest winner, are a good loser. You will not fail in love readily, but when you do succumb, it will be "for keeps."

2 EXAMPLES SHOW BAD CONDITION FACED BY FARMERS

Writer Finds Entire Families Working Without Remuneration

BY W. F. WINSEY

Two typical examples of the financial straits that farmers are in on account of the low prices of farm products, the one of a Brown-co farmer and the other of an Outagamie-co farmer, are presented below. Both of the farmers, although they are thrifty, were compelled to borrow money to pay their taxes and interest and neither saved any wages for themselves nor for other workers in their families. Both put their milk out on the road without weighing or testing it, and also without having anything to say about the price they were to get. Both farmers lost large crops of cabbage in the field last fall.

The Brown-co farmer raised 13 acres of potatoes last summer, 25 acres of peas, 14 acres of cabbage, one-fourth of an acre of beans, 30 acres of corn, 10 acres of barley, 40 acres of mixed alfalfa and timothy, and a large acreage of corn.

He received $245 for the potatoes sold and still has 60 bushels on hand. He received an average of $33 per acre for 25 acres of peas or a total of $825. He said, however, that peas were the only crop on which he made any money.

His 13 acres of potatoes brought him a total of $400. For his 14 acres of cabbage, a very good crop brought him $66 for what he sold at $3.25 per ton. He paid $90 for the fertilizers used on his cabbage field. After his experience in marketing, he turned his cattle into his cabbage field.

His one-fourth of an acre of beans brought him $40. The highest price that he received for his lot of beans during the past year was 50 cents a pound and the low at the present month, 35 cents per pound.

Sells 5 Bulls
He sold five bulls ranging from 16 months to one year old at an average price of $17 and had to wait from 2 to 3 months for buyers.

These bulls under ordinary conditions would have brought him an average of $100. He said that notwithstanding the depression of prices registration fees and herd assessments are just as high as in the past.

With respect to assessments of farm lands, he paid $1200 for 40 acres for the past year. He is assessing $1400 although he is offering it at the original price of $1200. No member of his family nor himself received wages.

The farmer, on account of the low prices of farm products and the high prices of farm necessities, was compelled to borrow money to pay his taxes and interest on a small debt.

This spring as cash crops he expects to plant 25 acres of peas, four acres of potatoes and four acres of alfalfa in addition to his regular acreages of grain already planted.

The case of the Outagamie-co farmer is about the same as that of the Brown-co farmer. The Outagamie farmer works a large farm, well equipped with buildings and machinery and cattle, with the help of his wife and two sons. The farm gives evidence on every hand of intelligent management, thrift, economy and prosperity. The farmer replies to a question that the lack of a market caused the loss of his large cabbage crop last fall, and that the prices of milk is not paying the cost of dairy feed to say nothing of interest on investment and labor. All of the income of the farm is used in paying for necessities and neither of his two sons, one 18 years of age and the other 22, nor his wife nor himself received a cent for work the past year beyond a little pleasure money.

NO WONDER
The young wife was heartbroken. "What's the matter?" asked a friend.

"Oh, my husband is so absent-minded. After breakfast he left a tin on the table and when I handed him his hat he handed me another tin."

"Well, that's nothing to worry about. It's just a case of habit."

"That's what worries me. He kissed me when I gave him his coat."—Titt-Bits.

PLANS EXPERIMENT WITH SOYBEAN CROP

C. J. Loev Will Plant Field After Pea Crop Is Harvested

BY W. F. WINSEY
C. J. Loev expects to plant 10 acres of soybeans on his canning pea field, after he harvests his pea crop, the coming summer. In explanation of the experiment, Mr. Loev said that soybeans grow very rapidly planted in rich soil, if the ground is warm when the seed is planted and will mature sufficiently for hay if the seed is planted in a good bed after a pea crop is removed.

Mr. Loev raised five acres of soybean hay last season and declared that the hay was a better milk producing feed than the best grade of alfalfa. He prefers soybeans for hay if the seed is planted in the spring after corn planting time and there is no winterkilling, so often the discouraging feature with a stand of alfalfa.

Mr. Loev cured his soybeans hay very easily last summer. He left the hay in the swath until it was ready for the mow, and used a hay loader on the swaths, with no raking, no windrows, no shaking up with forks and tedders, and no loss of the leaves. His hay put up in this way saved two-thirds of his usual expense for protein dairy feeds.

FARMER PLANTS 11 ACRES OF ALFALFA
BY W. F. WINSEY
John Immoel, route 1, planted 11 acres of alfalfa and eight acres of sweet clover with a mixed nurse crop of oats and barley, this spring. His stands of oats and barley are exceptionally satisfactory and the alfalfa and sweet clover are doing well. This summer his hay crop will consist of 16 acres of mixed alfalfa, timothy and clover. He expects to plant 13 acres of corn and on Thursday he was working a top dressing of barnyard manure in the soil of his cornfield.

ELISSA LANDI WINS GLYN'S APPROVAL

Newcomer to Screen Will Appear in Picture "Body and Soul"

That shrewd judge of personality and potential success, Elinor Glyn, has put her stamp of approval on another young actress, a newcomer to American talking pictures, Elissa Landi of Fox Films.

Though Miss Landi will be seen on the screen here for the first time opposite Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," her talents, beauty and charming personality are familiar to the colored audience.

In addition to the two English films, Miss Landi has played an important role in a Swedish picture, and appeared opposite Adolphe Menjou in a French production, "My Kid of a Father."

Her first part in an American picture is the coveted leading role opposite Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," which will be shown at the Fox theater midnight show tonight. In this she portrays a young woman whose romance with an aviator is threatened when she is suspected of being a spy. The public appearance of Elissa Landi affords Miss Landi ample opportunity to demonstrate her emotional capacity as well as her charm and personality.

Though the picture is laid against a background of war, the love story is its dominant feature. It was directed by Alfred Santora from the play "Squadrons," by Elliott White Springs and A. E. Thomas.

Miss Landi was born in Venice, Italy. At an early age she was taken to London, where she was educated by private tutors. When still a little girl she studied for the Russian ballet. Her first public appearance was made with eight other small girls at a dance recital in London. Her parents did not encourage dancing as a career, but they did urge her to follow her ambition to write.

She was taught German, French and Italian and speaks these languages as fluently as she does English.

"TRADER HORN" TO BE SHOWN AT FOX

Jungle Picture to Open Five-day Engagement Beginning Monday

"Trader Horn", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational filmization of the famous book of African adventure, will open a five-day engagement at the Fox Theatre, beginning Monday, as the biggest undertaking in the history of the theatre. The picture is a motorized safari of a hundred trucks and autos in the tropics, pressed into jungles in Africa never before traversed by white men.

They carried the first and the only sound recording apparatus ever brought to African jungle, and filmed and recorded the drama, with wild beasts, savage native dances and ceremonies and other details right on the ground.

They covered British East Africa, the Belgian Congo, and invaded the dreaded Murchison Falls "sleeping sickness" country, in the 25,000 mile location trip.

The story, as adapted from the famous book by Alfred Aloysius Horn and Ethelreda Lewis, deals with trader and his protegee, Peru, who promises a woman missionary to find the "White Goddess" of the savage Isorah, whom she believes to be her daughter, lost in a native raid as a baby.

Harry Carey, hero of "Trail of '88", "Silent Sanderson" and many other hits, plays the trader and Edwina Booth, pretty blonde of "Manhattan Cocktail", who volunteered for the arduous trip, is seen as Nina T. Duncan Renaldo, of "Bridge of San Luis Rey" fame; Olive Golden, former western star, and Mutia, giant Swahili warrior, who plays Rencho, are among the cast.

Thousands of natives appear, as well as thousands of wild animals of every conceivable variety. The strange African pygmies, who hide in the jungles and fight enemies with poisoned arrows, are also seen in the picture. W. S. Van Dyke, who directed the vivid film, is noted for photoplays made in wild places, such as "The Pagan" and "White Shadows of the South Seas."

The third act, "The Five de Cardos" promises to be the flashiest novelty act ever staged at this theatre since Vaudeville was inaugurated. The "Collegian Capers" as they call themselves are entertainers. Supreme. It has been the policy of the management of the Fox Theatre, Appleton's Palace of Entertainment, since Vaudeville Entertainment has begun, to provide the people of Appleton entertainment that is unexcelled both for children and grown-ups.

The Overture will be played by Mickey and His Commodores with Marshall Tooley at the Mighty Wur-litzer.

NANCY CARROLL IN "STOLEN HEAVEN"

Picture Will Be Shown at Appleton Theatre Next Week

Nancy Carroll and Philip Holmes are co-starred in "Stolen Heaven" which comes to the Appleton Theatre for three days beginning Wednesday.

ARLISS COMING IN LATEST PICTURE

Film Tells Story of Wealthy Manufacturer Robbed by Associates

George Arliss in "The Millionaire" comes to the Appleton theatre for a three day engagement, starting tomorrow with a special showing at the midnight performance tonight. Arliss is seen in a different role in "The Millionaire" a role in which he is pictured as a great manufacturer of much wealth only to have it all torn from him through greedy associates.

There is much cause for laughter in the story with the authors eye particularly slanted toward the comedy antics of Arliss. Many funny situations bring out the humor of the story and its highlights are extremely amusing. "The Millionaire" is now showing at the Winter Garden in New York and it has been pronounced as the greatest success on a street that is used to housing successes.

A cast of special film favorites surround the sterling actor.

"OH, FOR A MAN" TO BE SHOWN AT ELITE

Clever Comic Team Appears in Film to Be Shown Next Week

Many comedy moments will be supplied in "Oh, For A Man" the Fox movie-tone production coming to the Elite Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by the inimitable duo, Warren Hymer and Marjorie White.

In the screen story Hymer plays the role of "Pug Morini," known to boxing fame as "The Walloping Wop," who marries "Totsy Franklin," a vaudeville singer and hooper played by Marjorie White. "Pug" decides to honeymoon in Italy, the home of his parents, and there he meets Reginald Denny, the burglar who married a prima donna, and complications certainly ensue.

Jeanette MacDonald is co-starred with Denny in the picture with an all-star supporting cast. "Oh, For A Man" with its unusual theme, is about the smartest, most sophisticated and genuinely sparkling comedy that has come this way in many a year.

REAL ROMANCE IN WESTERN PICTURE

Human Interest Yarn Set Against Colorful Background of West

A real human interest yarn set against the colorful background of the pioneer west, speeded with the atmosphere of real romance, and alive with strong situations and thrilling action. That's "Desert Vengeance," Columbia's all-talking feature starring Buck Jones, at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

The story revolves around the activities of two rival gangs of bandits—one headed by the reprehensible but lovable Jim Carver. Parson Smith an old minister, has a genuine affection for the dashing bandit. And Jim Carver falls in love with an adventuress. This situation provides thrills galore and an unexpected but satisfying denouement.

Buck Jones not only contributes some entirely novel exhibitions of fine horsemanship in this picture, but gives a splendid characterization of the daredevil Carver. Barbara Bedford makes a splendid and lovely villainess for the bandit hero. Al Smith, Slim Whitaker and Buck Conner are others whose performance is outstanding. Louis King scores another hit as a director.

For three days beginning Wednesday, it's a Paramount picture. The story concerns a crook who wanted to live on his stolen earnings like a king. With Nancy Carroll he goes to Florida, and live like millionaires until the law finally catches up with them and returns them to the scene of their crimes.

There is much pathos pictured in then tense drama and lovers of Nancy Carroll will delight in her new role as a siren who only sought happiness but found unhappiness. A cast of film favorites complete a cast that will long be remembered in pictures.

JOAN CRAWFORD IN MASTERFUL ROLE

Plays Straight Dramatic Part as Heroine in "Paid"

Joan Crawford reaches the pinnacle of her interesting career as the heroine of "Paid," which opens a 2 day engagement at the Elite Theatre next Thursday as a talkie version of Bayard Veiller's celebrated stage play, "Within the Law." This is Miss Crawford's first straight dramatic role and in it she achieves a brilliance of characterization that will establish her among the front ranks of dramatic stars.

The role of Mary Turner becomes amazingly realistic in Miss Crawford's understanding hands and throughout the picture she maintains an even tempo of emotionalism that lends a convincing tone to her performance.

In the role of one of the crooks, Robert Armstrong gives a notable characterization, free from over-acting. Marie Prevost, as a woman of questionable reputation, gives the audience plenty of laughs. Kent Douglas, a newcomer to the screen, makes a promising debut in the romantic lead, and expert work is done by John Miljan as the police official, Purnell Pratt, Hale Hamilton, William Bakewell, Gwen Lee, Robert Emmet O'Connor, George Cooper and Tyrrell Davis.

Your Birthday

FARMER RIDES FIELD OF QUACK GRASS

Believes Method Will Insure Larger Yields of Alfalfa

Lawrence J. Kaufman, route 1, is removing ten acres of quack grass with a digger preparatory to planting a field with corn. The first year on his farm he got only seven loads of hay because his fields were overrun with quack. Two years ago he dug the quack out of a five-acre field and later got nine large loads of alfalfa from the same field. He has rid 18 acres of the weed.

In Outagamie-co. Mr. Kaufman is one of the pioneers in the raising of alfalfa without a nurse crop, and in the setting aside of one-half of the acreage of his farm for the raising of alfalfa and sweet clover.

On April 7, after making a good seed bed, he sowed 6 acres of alfalfa without a nurse crop. All of the seed is sprouted and most of the plants reach above the surface in a very even stand. If the field gets an average rainfall, he expects to cut two crops on the field this summer. Mr. Kaufman's plan is successfully in use on some of the large farms of Western-co.

In another field, Mr. Kaufman seeded 10 acres of alfalfa with a nurse crop of Wisconsin barley. The alfalfa is above the surface and all the seed has sprouted. He sprinkled an old meadow this spring with sweet clover.

Your nature is a kind and affectionate one, and your temper is equable up to a certain point. When however, the demon that is in you, that is all of us, is aroused, the results are somewhat devastating. Such happenings are, fortunately, infrequent.

2 EXAMPLES SHOW BAD CONDITION FACED BY FARMERS

Writer Finds Entire Families Working Without Remuneration

BY W. F. WINSEY

Two typical examples of the financial straits that farmers are in on account of the low prices of farm products, the one of a Brown-co farmer and the other of an Outagamie-co farmer, are presented below. Both of the farmers, although they are thrifty, were compelled to borrow money to pay their taxes and interest and neither saved any wages for themselves nor for other workers in their families. Both put their milk out on the road without weighing or testing it and also without having anything to say about the price they were to get. Both farmers left large crops of cabbage in the field last fall.

The Brown-co farmer raised 13 acres of potatoes last summer, 25 acres of peas, 14 acres of cabbage, one-fourth of an acre of beans, 30 acres of corn, 10 acres of barley, 40 acres of mixed alfalfa and timothy, and a large acreage of corn.

He received $243 for the potatoes sold and still has 60 bushels on hand. He received an average of $33 per acre for 25 acres of peas or a total of $825. He said, however, that peas were a really crop on which he made any money.

His 13 acres of potatoes brought him a total of $400. For his 14 acres of cabbage, a very good crop brought him $56 for what he sold at $3.25 per ton. He paid $80 for the fertilizers used on his cabbage field. After his experience in marketing he turned his cattle into his cabbage field.

His one-fourth of an acre of beans brought him $40. The highest price that he received for butter fat during the past year was 50 cents per pound and the lowest the present month, 35 cents per pound.

Sells 5 Bulls
He sold five bulls ranging from 16 months to one year old at an average price of $47 and had to wait from 2 months for his money. These bulls under present conditions would have brought him a total of $100. He said that notwithstanding the depression of prices registration fees and herd assessments are just as high as in the past.

With respect to assessments of farm taxes, he said that 40 acres for which he paid $150 in taxes at $1400 although he is offering it at the original price of $1200. No member of his family nor himself received wages.

This farmer, on account of the low prices of farm products and the high prices of farm necessities, was compelled to borrow money to pay his taxes and interest on a small debt.

This spring as cash crops he expects to plant 25 acres of peas, four acres of potatoes and four acres of cabbage in addition to his regular acreage of grain already planted.

The case of the Outagamie-co farmer is about the same as that of the Brown-co farmer. The Outagamie farmer works a large farm, well equipped with buildings and machinery and cattle, with the help of his wife and two sons. The farm gives evidence of a very intelligent management, thrift, economy and prosperity. The farmer replies to a question that the lack of a market caused the loss of his large cabbage crop last fall, and that the price of milk is not paying the cost of dairy feed to say nothing of interest on investment and labor. All of the income of the farm is used in paying for necessities and neither of his two sons, one 18 years of age and the other 22, nor his wife nor himself received a cent for work the past year beyond a little pleasure money.

PLANS EXPERIMENT WITH SOYBEAN CROP

C. J. Loev Will Plant Field After Pea Crop Is Harvested

BY W. F. WINSEY

C. J. Loev expects to plant 10 acres of soybeans on his home farm field, after he harvests his pea crop, the coming summer. In explanation of the experiment, Mr. Loev said that soybeans grow very rapidly planted in rich soil, if the ground is warm when the seed is planted and will mature sufficiently for hay if the seed is planted in a good bed after a pea crop is removed.

Mr. Loev raised five acres of soybean hay last season and declared that the hay was a better milk producing feed than the best grade of alfalfa. He plans soybeans for the other reason that the seed is planted in the spring after corn planting time and there is no winterkilling, so often the discouraging feature with a stand of alfalfa.

Mr. Loev cured his soybeans hay very easily last summer. He left the hay in the swath until it was ready for the mow, and used a hay loader on the swaths, with no raking, no windrows, no shaking up with forks and tedders, and no loss of the leaves that contain a large part of the feed. His hay put up in this way saved two-thirds of his usual expense for protein dairy feeds.

FARMER PLANTS 11 ACRES OF ALFALFA

BY W. F. WINSEY
John Imhof, route 1, planted 11 acres of alfalfa and eight acres of sweet clover with a mixed nurse crop of oats and barley, this spring. His stands of oats and barley are exceptionally satisfactory and the alfalfa and sweet clover are doing well. This summer his hay crop will consist of 16 acres of mixed alfalfa, timothy and clover. He expects to plant 18 acres of corn and on Thursday he was working a top dressing of barnyard manure in the soil of his cornfield.

ELISSA LANDI WINS GLYN'S APPROVAL

Newcomer to Screen Will Appear in Picture "Body and Soul"

That shrewd judge of personality and potential success, Elinor Glyn, has put her stamp of approval on another young actress, a newcomer to American talking pictures, Elissa Landi of Fox Films.

Though Miss Landi will be seen on the screen here for the first time opposite Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," her talents, beauty and charming personality are familiar to the celebrated author.

In addition to the two English films, Miss Landi has played an important role in a Swedish picture, and appeared opposite Adolphe Menjou in a French production, "My Kid of a Father."

Her first part in an American picture is the coveted leading role opposite Charles Farrell in "Body and Soul," which will be shown at the Fox theater midnight show tonight. In this she portrays a young woman whose romance with an aviator is threatened when she is suspected of being a spy. The role affords Miss Landi ample opportunity to demonstrate her emotional capacity as well as her charm and personality.

Though the picture is laid against a background of war, the love story is its dominant feature. It was directed by Alfred Santell from the play "Squadrons," by Elliott White Springs and A. E. Thomas.

Miss Landi was born in Venice, Italy. At an early age she was taken to London, where she was educated by private tutors. When still a little girl she studied for the "Russian ballet." Her first public appearance was made with eight other small girls at a dance recital in London. Her parents did not encourage dancing as a career, but they did urge her to follow her ambition to write. She was taught German, French and Italian and speaks these languages as fluently as she does English.

"TRADER HORN" TO BE SHOWN AT FOX

Jungle Picture to Open Five-day Engagement Beginning Monday

"Trader Horn," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational film of the famous book of African adventure, will open a five-day engagement at the Fox Theatre, beginning Monday, as the biggest undertaking in the filming of adventure films in history. With a motorized staff of a hundred trucks and autos, the troupe pressed into jungles in Africa never before traversed by white men.

They carried the first and the only sound recording apparatus ever brought to African jungle, and filmed and recorded the drama, with wild beasts, savage native dances and ceremonies and other details right on the ground.

They covered British East Africa, the Belgian Congo, and invaded the dreaded Murchison Falls "sleeping sickness" country, in the 25,000 mile location trip.

The story, as adapted from the famous book by Alfred Aloysius Horn and Ethelreda Lewis, deals with trader and his protegee, Peru, who promises a woman missionary to find the "White Goddess" of the savage Isorgi, whom she believes to be her daughter, lost in a native raid as a baby.

Harry Carey, hero of "Trail of '98," "Silent Sandersen" and many other hits, plays the trader and Edwina Booth, pretty blonde of "Manhattan Cocktail," who volunteered for the arduous trip, is seen as Nina T. Duncan Renaldo, of "Bridge of San Luis Rey" fame; Olive Golden, former western star, and Mutia, silent Swedish warrior, who plays Renchero, are among the cast.

Thousands of natives appear, as well as thousands of wild animals of every conceivable variety. The strange African pygmies, who hide in the jungles and fight enemies with poisoned arrows, are also seen in the picture. W. S. Van Dyke, who directed the wild film, is noted for photoplays made in wild places, such as "The Fagan" and "White Shadows of the South Seas."

ARLISS COMING IN LATEST PICTURE

Film Tells Story of Wealthy Manufacturer Robbed by Associates

George Arliss in "The Millionaire" comes to the Appleton theatre for a three day engagement starting tomorrow with a special showing at the midnight performance tonight. Arliss is seen in a different role in "The Millionaire" a role in which he is pictured as a great manufacturer of much wealth only to have it all torn from him through greedy associates.

There is much cause for laughter in the story with the authors eye particularly slanted toward the comedy antics of Arliss. Many funny situations bring out the humor of the story and its highlights are extremely amusing.

"The Millionaire" is now showing at the Winter Garden in New York and it has been pronounced as the greatest success on a street that is used to housing successes.

A cast of special film favorites surround the sterling actor.

"OH, FOR A MAN" TO BE SHOWN AT ELITE

Clever Comic Team Appears in Film to Be Shown Next Week

Many comedy moments will be supplied in "Oh, For a Man," the Fox movie production coming to the Elite Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, by the inimitable duo, Warren Hymer and Marjorie White.

In the screen story Hymer plays the role of "Fug Morini," known to boxing fame as "The Walloping Wop," who marries "Totsy Franklin," a vaudeville singer and hooper played by Marjorie White. "Fug" decides to honeymoon it in Italy, the home of his parents, and there he meets Reginald Denny, the burglar who married a prime donna, and complications certainly ensue.

Jeanette MacDonald is co-starring with Denny in the picture with an all-star supporting cast.

"Oh, For a Man" with its unusual theme, is about the smartest, most sophisticated and genuinely sparkling comedy that has come this way in many a year.

REAL ROMANCE IN WESTERN PICTURE

Human Interest Yarn Set Against Colorful Background of West

A real human interest yarn set against the colorful background of the pioneer west, spiced with the atmosphere of real romance, and alive with strong situations and thrilling action. That's "Desert Vengeance," Columbia's all-talking feature starring Buck Jones, at the Elite Theatre today and Sunday.

The story revolves around the activities of two rival gangs of bandits—one headed by the reprehensible but lovable Jim Carlew, Parson Smith an old minister, has a genuine affection for the dashing bandit. And Jim Carlew falls in love with an adventuress. This situation provides thrilling gallop and an unexpected satisfying denouement.

Buck Jones not only contributes some entirely novel exhibitions of fine horsemanship in this picture, but gives a splendid characterization of the daredevil Carlew. Barbara Bedford makes a splendid and lovely vis-a-vis for the bandits hero. Al Smith, Slim Whitaker and Buck Conner are others whose performance is outstanding. Louis King scores another hit as a director.

For three days beginning Wednesday, it's a Paramount picture. The story concerns a crook who wanted to live on his stolen earnings like a king. With Nancy they go to Florida and live like millionaires until the law finally catches up with them and returns them to the scene of their crimes.

There is much pathos pictured in these tense drama and lovers of Nancy Carroll will delight in her new role as a siren who only sought happiness but found unhappiness. A cast of film favorites complete a cast that will long be remembered in pictures.

JOAN CRAWFORD IN MASTERFUL ROLE

Plays Straight Dramatic Part as Heroine in "Paid"

Joan Crawford reaches the pinnacle of her interesting career as the heroine of "Paid," which opens a 2 day engagement at the Elite Theatre next Thursday as a talkie version of Bayard Veiller's celebrated stage play, "Within the Law."

This is Miss Crawford's first straight dramatic role and in it she achieves a brilliance of characterization that will establish her among the front ranks of dramatic stars. The role of Mary Turner becomes amazingly realistic in Miss Crawford's understanding hands and throughout the picture she maintains an even tempo of emotionalism that lends a convincing tone to her performance.

In the role of one of the crooks, Robert Armstrong gives a notable characterization, free from over-acting. Marie Prevost, as a woman of questionable reputation, gives the audience plenty of laughs. Kent Douglas, a newcomer to the screen, makes a promising debut in the romantic lead, and expert work is done by John Miller as the police official, Fumell Pratt, Hale Hamilton, William Bakewell, Gwen Lee, Robert Emmet O'Connor, George Cooper and Tyrrell Davis.

Chapter 10
ESCAPE FOR NORA

His color was driven from Nora's cheeks by Nicholas' brutal reply. Her breath was coming so unsteadily that she could not speak and her heart seemed to shake her body to pieces.

"I don't know what I meant," she stammered.

And yet when she had asked Nicholas to take her away with him, had she not meant that he marry her? All these days that she had thought of him was it not just this that she hoped for? Was this not her chance of escape? He looked so romantic when she glanced at him. Yet he alone could take her home, save her from Helen Nevers, from this little life that she must lead henceforth beside a jealous woman.

"Could you give me the money? I would pay it back!"

"No, but I'll marry you."

"You're sorry for me!" she cried.

"Does it look that way? Why did I come to this place? Why have I stayed? Why did I tell you last night?"

Suddenly she was in a panic. Each way she turned she seemed to be trapped. She whispered:

"But—I don't love you!"

All she wanted was security. She was standing now, as though she would run down that hill if he touched her. He drew her toward him, but all she said when she leaned back from his kiss was:

"Take me home."

She left him with the excuse that she must go down to look after Margaret, but half way down the hill she decided she must go back to tell him not to tell her father yet. She stole around the winding path and stood still. Then she saw him lying in the grass, on his face, his hands clenched in the grass and he was sobbing.

She moved back step by step. His bitterness was only the shield of an intolerable sensitiveness. He had seemed callous when he was suffering horribly.

She was not afraid of him now that she had stumbled on his secret. Someone needed her, as her father no longer needed her; and in that moment she knew she had found her excuse for carrying him.

She liked places better than people. Nora decided. Wet mornings when the brown leaves glistened; cloud-filled afternoons; deep evenings with their stars.

Yet Nicholas had not disappointed her. He was kind; he was even thoughtful. And she, who never had anyone in all of 20 years—except her grandmother—thought of her first, was constantly touched and pleased.

She was not excited by Nicholas; but she no longer felt strange with him. She was used to his moody silence now. And she believed with a pride that was pathetic that he needed her.

Her feelings did not need arrangement; for they were simply gratitude and pity and pride. It was, after all, rather a splendid thing as Julian and Helen Nevers told her, that a man would one day be a most famous painter had chosen her from all the world.

But when she was alone it was of the old Dutch house on the river bank near Albany, where Nicholas was taking her, of which she dreamed as an other girl might have dreamed of love. No one would ever pull her up by the roots again. And she need not worry about money now.

Nicholas would give her infinite freedom and she would grow very fond of him in time. She passed over this very quickly.

But she was hungry to know all about Nicholas' people; about his home. She urged him to tell her more.

"Nothing to tell. That was my brother Jon you met in England, I fancy."

"Is that all your family?"

He looked up. He was stacking his canvases face toward the wall. He preferred, he had told her, that she shouldn't look at them. They were no good.

"No, I've a step-sister, Damon. And her father."

"What is she like?"

"What are any of us like?" Do you mean the color of her hair?"

"Isn't there anything else you want to tell me?" she persisted.

"Do you mean about my wicked past?" he asked ironically.

He said no more about his people.

But that night she turned to pin her father down to facts.

Julian, you don't think—I mean you do think that I should marry Nicholas?"

"Think of some one beside yourself, my child. The poor fellow would lose his mind if you didn't," he said airily.

An unmarried daughter, tagging you over Europe especially on your honeymoon, he reflected, would be a little tiresome.

Julian was sitting at the foot of her bed, smoking, and now she asked him about their relatives at home.

"Dreadful!" he shuddered. "But my sister isn't so bad. Anyone is dreadful who doesn't admire me. Emily told me once I was wasting my time. I might give fame a rest. And even my bread. That is the way the bourgeoisie talk," he warned her.

He always slid away from under her fingers like this.

But with Nicholas it was different. She could say anything that came into her head to him and he would answer her, honestly. She asked him a little timidly if he were happy.

"Happy—who is?" he asked her.

"Remember, Nora, take all you can get out of life. But don't pay too much for money."

She sat thinking. If she had had money, would she have married him?

Her father said that romance was the dream of fools. And she had plenty of romance to last her; if romance meant rushing from one place to another in pursuit of something you never found.

The days went pell-mell past. The last one was on them. Nicholas was going ahead to Naples. He told her their plans carefully, as though she were a child; and she sat looking at his thin hawk-like nose and his eyes. No one to see him so would ever know, as she did, how infinitely kind he was.

But at the end she said in a panic, "Nicholas, you don't have to marry me, you know!"

"But I am going to," he said.

Julian burst in to say, "The fire-escape's at the door. You'd better hurry. We'll wire you, my dear fellow, the hour of our arrival."

And two days later Nora and her father left. She was seeing the last of their borrowed villa Rosa.

Nora turned to her father, anxiously to ask him if she looked all right.

"You look charming! Charming!" he told her, his eyes twinkling.

But she wondered a little doubtfully if the old blue suit and scarlet blouse were just the thing for a bride. She pushed on her hat at a more jaunty angle, while her father remarked that things had turned out splendidly for them.

She wondered if they had. For now she was in a kind of panic. Nor did she relax until she sank into the seat of the second-class carriage. She was going to be married. She supposed she should be happy; and she had never been more miserable in her life.

At last they all leaned out to see the plume of smoke that hung above Vesuvius in the brilliant air; and Nora knew they were near Naples. Their bags were piled on the platform. Nicholas was between laughter and tears when Nicholas joined them.

Nicholas was strangely excited. His hand would be all right, he assured them. Her father asked Nicholas if he had the ring, and the tickets for the boat. Nora moved in a dream. The only real person was Julian who was steady and calm in the rectory parlor where they were married.

At last it was all over. Nora found herself clinging to him. If only it were Julian who was going home with her! For now Nicholas was sunk in a brooding silence. Nicholas tried to hurry her at the dock, but Julian drew Nora aside and pulled out of his pocket some bank notes that he thrust into her hand.

She hugged him, wondering even then if he had borrowed the money from Nicholas.

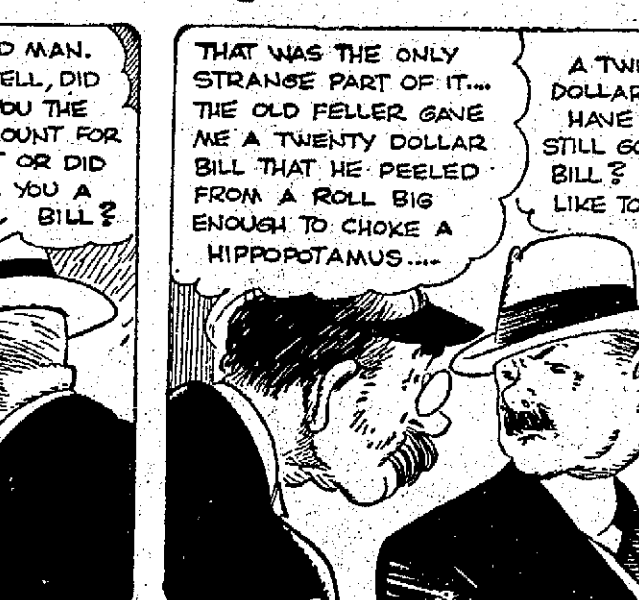

(Copyright, 1931, Jessie Douglas Fox)

Nicholas' injured hand will trouble him no longer, he tells Nora tomorrow. And morning proves his prediction.

Central Wisconsin And Little Fox Leagues Open Tomorrow

ATHLETICS TO MEET PAIS AT INTERLAKE PARK

Neenah Goes to Little Chute; Green Bay and DePere Are Idle

LITTLE FOX LEAGUE SUNDAY'S GAMES
Menasha at Appleton.
Neenah at Little Chute.
DePere at Green Bay (postponed).

BECAUSE of the last minute withdrawal of Sherwood from the Little Fox River Valley baseball league, the league's schedule was not completed until last night and the loop now will get underway Sunday afternoon with two games. The DePere Stars have been secured to take the place of Sherwood, the Hollanders being considered one of the strongest teams in the valley.

Only two games, one at Appleton and one at Little Chute are carried for tomorrow because the Menasha Druggs of Green Bay previously scheduled an independent game with a Gillett team. All teams will go into action next Sunday, May 10.

Sherwood's withdrawal came as a surprise to league officials and they had to do some tall hustling during the week and announced later.

Little Chute, host to Neenah Sunday is planning a gala opening day with a crowd of about 1,000 if the weather is favorable. A band is expected out and it is said Casey Jensen, village president will toss the first ball. Neenah boasts a team augmented by several members of the state championship American Legion nine, together with several several Twin City Valley League stars.

Appleton Plays Here
Appleton's veterans of Little Fox play entertain the Menasha Eagles already gaining reputation as a bunch of fence busters. The game will begin at 2:30 and will be played at the Appleton team's usual stamping ground, Interlake park.

Don Kranzsch is slated to hurl for the Appleton team. C. DeYoung will do the receiving. At first base the Athletics will show L. Kubler, E. Engemann at second, L. H. Horn at short and L. Horn at third. The outfield trio will be picked from J. Horn, B. Bruggeman, H. Bruggeman, Bowman, Furringer and Kirk. The league schedule for May is completed by league moguls recently is:

May 10—DePere at Menasha; Little Chute at Appleton; Green Bay at Neenah.

May 11—Menasha at Neenah; Little Chute at DePere; Appleton at Green Bay.

May 12—Menasha at Little Chute; Green Bay at Appleton; Neenah at DePere.

May 13—Appleton at Neenah; Menasha at DePere.

Considerable difficulty was encountered preparing the schedule because two league teams share the same grounds at Neenah. This has necessitated as many as three straight home games or away from home games. All postponed games will be played as double headers or on holidays.

No games will be played after the closing of the season. Six 13 games remaining at that time being automatically cancelled.

LITTLE CHUTE VS. NEENAH
Little Chute will open the Little Fox league will open the baseball season in this village Sunday afternoon with a game against the Neenah team. If the weather is favorable a big crowd is expected. The fact that the Neenah team is much strengthened over last year will give the Chutes plenty of hard work. The batteries for Neenah will be Fahrrenkrug, pitcher, and Handler, catcher; Little Chute batteries will be Vander Steen and Schiefel, pitchers and Lamers, catcher. The probable starting line-up for the local nine will be: G. Versteegen, shortstop; A. Wildenberg, third base; P. Kostka, center field; Strick, left field; Lamers, catcher; Jansen, right field; Dupont, first base; R. Vanden Heuvel, second base; Vander Steen, pitcher.

Johnny Farrell on GOLF

BY JOHNNY FARRELL
(Former American Open Champion)
As Told To Alan Gould
NO. 4. THE STANCE

The proper stance for the drive is with the knees relaxed, slightly bent.

This makes it easy to develop the relaxed body pivot. Stiffness at the address, with the feet too far apart, makes it impossible to pivot properly.

Relax, too, on the follow-through. Do not stiffen up at the finish. The fullness and ease of the follow-through is a factor in giving power and distance.

Do not sacrifice the accuracy of tee shots, however, by too much stress on distance.

Too often the player loses control off the tees by the desire to slug the ball out of sight. I know it is difficult to check this desire, especially among the players who get pretty good distance anyway, but it seldom pays dividends.

Willie Macfarlane's play at Miami, where he single-handedly beat Gene Sarazen and myself in the four ball matches last winter, furnished a great lesson along this line.

Willie was outdriven by his partner, Wiffy Cox, as well as by Gene and myself, all the way, frequently by as much as 50 yards. However, he was invariably "inside" when we got to the green. He was straight all the way. That's the important thing.

How often have you seen the older player on the club course, satisfied to hit his 150-175 yard shots straight down the fairway, beat the younger chap who delights in seeking the ball upwards of 200 yards but who also spends a great part of his time in the woods or traps?

It doesn't pay to try to kill the ball, either off the tee, or in an attempt to make up for ground lost by a poor shot.

Monday—How To Train

Johnny Farrell on the left initiates the dub to show the wrong stance. The correct form which made him one of the best pros in the country is shown right.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Editor's Note: Here's an article by Hank McCormick of Madison's Journal in which he discusses the legislature's move to make Wisconsin an anti-Marquette play football. It doesn't say much but it indicates just that much interest in the game.

PUBLIC welfare in Wisconsin will probably be served just as well whether or not Wisconsin and Marquette ever play a football game—that deduction being prompted by the attitude of the assembly committee on public welfare which Wednesday afternoon listened with undisguised amusement and tolerance as the sponsors of a joint resolution recommending such a game stumbled through their speeches in favor of "Total Resolution 92. A."

Among those appearing to endorse the resolution was Assemblyman Jerome Fox, Chilton, who qualified for a place alongside Arthur ("The Great") Shires when he admitted having attended both Wisconsin and Marquette as well as several other schools. Close questioning by Chalmers Don Smith, Lake Mills, brought out that Fox had graduated from Wisconsin, on his own admission, "by the help of God and a strong outfield."

Assemblyman Frederick W. Krez, Plymouth, author of the resolution, made his appearance after being summoned by the sergeant-at-arms. "Inasmuch as I am the author of this resolution," said Mr. Krez with a sheepish smile, "I suppose I ought to appear in its behalf."

He looked around to see if there were any dissenting opinions and then said he thought a game between the two schools would be a good thing and was quite generally desired by alumni of the two schools (Alumni of both schools or representatives of them were conspicuous by their absence).

Assemblyman Walter P. Kupiz, Milwaukee, admitted being a steeplejack in answer to Chairman Smith's question and then went on record as favoring the resolution. Assemblyman J. D. Westlund, Superior, and George Mooney, Plymouth, drug giant, also registered as favoring passage of the joint resolution.

"Are there any more drugists or steeplejacks in favor of this resolution," queried Chairman Smith; there were not.

Prior to making his address Assemblyman Fox took a deep draught from the pitcher of liquid sitting on the table. He seemed to feel better and gave a fervent if somewhat rambling talk.

Your correspondent succeeded in getting a drink out of the same pitcher later in the afternoon after considerable gulps and deception; ugh—it was water.

MENASHA PLAYS AT KIMBERLY SUNDAY

Papermakers Will Show Pooan and Ritten on the Pitching Mound

Kimberly—With only one more week of practice before the Fox River Valley League gets into swing, Clarence Pooan the pitching pilot of the Papermakers from Kimberly has had his men out taking every break old man weather gives. In his search for practice games Pooan has picked out teams that have star left hand hurlers. The Kimberly club Sunday will cross bats with the reorganized Menasha Falcons who with most of last year's Valley League stars have a strong team. A left hander will do the twirling for the Menasha aggregation.

Clarence Pooan committed himself today and thereby exploded a number of rumors that he would not play with the Kimberly club this year. Clarence has turned down a number of offers, one of the latest with Racine in the State League. He will be on the mound for the Papermakers for at least five innings Sunday. Ritten also will see duty if his arm is O. K. The big news, however, is the announcement that Fred Hackbart of Oshkosh and Kirkoff of Green Bay are to play with the local aggregation. This group of hickory artists should make the Kimberly squad go places.

The baseball fans have volunteered their services repairing the ball park and a number of fans have been out making the park fit for Sunday's game.

SPORT CLUB SOCCER TEAM OPENS HOME CARD WITH OSHKOSH

Game Will Be Played at S. Outagamie-W. Spencertown Grounds

APPLETON Sport club soccer football team will open its home spring season at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon when it meets Oshkosh Sport club soccer players at the Third Ward field. The Black and White team has played two games so far this season losing to Shoboygan and winning from the Chair second team.

The invading team has been playing league soccer for four years and has a strong team boasting a fast front line. However, the Appleton aggregation has high hopes of challenging up a victory.

Members of the Appleton squad all are amateurs who have been playing the game for a little better than a year. They are paying their own way in the sport and raising a few dollars by passing the hat at games.

The game is not well known to American sports fans but in England and Europe the sports pages devote to baseball and football as played here. Crowds attending the games often run higher than the largest crowds at American sports events.

Members of the Appleton squad Sunday will be Ogilvie, W. Contrer, Guenavich, Jansen, Mueller, Boening, Lake, Farquhar, Andrews, Gordon, Rulsain, E. Centner, Fisher, Kislevski.

The boys will meet at the club rooms at 1 o'clock.

ALLISON, SHIELDS WIN DAVIS CUP MATCHES

Mexico City—(AP)—Two matches ahead despite a pair of hard court battles, the United States Davis cup team had a day of rest today before continuing its first round meeting with Mexico. The next match is to be played tomorrow when the northern team may clinch the victory in the doubles.

Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex. veteran Davis cup performer, and Frank Shields of New York, who is making his first appearance in singles play, both won their opening cup matches in straight sets yesterday. The victory was much as expected but their Mexican opponents were able to put up surprising good opposition. Allison defeated Alfonso Unda, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, and Shields, nearly a foot taller than his rival, Ricardo Tapia, and much stronger, won out by scores of 6-4, 6-1, 6-2.

Calling the Strikes

New York—(AP)—The big leagues haven't had all of the top layer of the cake in this season's output of baseball. The Pacific coast league has been on the job longer than the majors and there is only a slight gap between the first and last place teams. That is a mighty pace at the end of April and it holds on, the fans on the coast will be hooting like apaches by the fourth of July.

In the International league, the Reading club has had an attack of the Brooklyn flaps and in the American association the Toledo team has the same ailment. The Southern Association and the Texas league are giving the fans plenty of excitement.

TUSTIN MEETS MERCHANTS AT WILSON SCHOOL

Weyauwega Goes to New London, Shiocton Entertains Readfield

C. W. LEAGUE OPENING GAMES
Tustin at Appleton.
Weyauwega at New London.
Readfield at Shiocton.

APPLETON Merchants, local entry in the Central Wisconsin league will open the 1931 season at Wilson school grounds Sunday afternoon when the Tustin nine comes here. The game will begin at 2:30.

Other league games scheduled Sunday are Weyauwega at New London and Readfield at Shiocton.

The Merchants will present practically the same team that led the C. W. loop most of last season, only to crack near the end and take second honors. The experience is believed to have done the team good, however, and the boys have hopes of making a better showing this year.

Little is known about the Tustin lineup. For the Merchants, Eddie Helms against will do the receiving and Pope will be ready to relieve him. Leabs or Murphy, Merchant hurling acts last season again have returned to the team and will divide the mound duty. Dick Bauman is slated for first base where his height and reach will come in handy. He also is a good stickler.

At second base Manager Ralph Bedford will perform and Tommy Murphy will be his side kick at shortstop. Pete King, a veteran performer will report at this base.

In the outfield Ray Towner, a sure fielder and heavy hitter will work. He will patrol the center ground. Fen Bauman is booked for right field and Manfred Helms in left.

VALLEY SOFTBALL LEAGUE BEGINS PLAY

Service Bakery Team, Appleton, Opens With New London Squad

The first games in the Fox River Valley Softball league will be played Sunday morning when all teams in the loop go into action. The league was organized during the winter months and is composed of six teams from the Fox River valley.

Appleton will battle New London here at Pierce park, the game to begin at 10:30. Kimberly will go to Menasha, Oshkosh Merchants invade Kaukauna.

K. J. Hellenbeck and Gressna have been named hurlers for the Appleton club while Bowers and Gullickson will be the receivers.

BANKERS BEATEN BY PHONE SOFTBALLERS

The Banker softball team was defeated by the Telephone company of the American league in a fast and exciting practice game Friday evening. The score was 2 and 1.

Hellenbeck pitched great ball for the winners and had alright support. Wiseman tossed for the Banks and did a good job although his support was ragged.

Tigers Have Pitching But Now Lack Batting

BY FRANCIS J. POWERS
Copyright 1931

CHICAGO—(AP)—For many, many years the Detroit Tigers have been a team of hard work and hard hitting. Every one of them will develop into a winner.

Put Cobb, Crawford and Veach or Cobb, Veach and Hellmuth behind that pitching and the Tigers would travel far, this season. But unless the Walker brothers, Doljack and Johnson show unexpected batting strength, now he is after hitters—a strange problem for Detroit. When he finds them Detroit will get back in the pennant races; from which it has been absent for more than ten years.

Detroit has a promising short stop in Marvin Owen. He can field well enough and if he hits will be a real star. Owen came to the Tigers with only four months of professional experience behind him. Seattle grabbed him off the Santa Clara, Cal., college team and then Detroit snared him. His fielding has filled a gap that bothered Detroit managers for several seasons but Harris could wish for a little more batting from the young man.

Harris has done much rebuilding since taking over the Tigers in 1930. He has secured the needed pitching strength. Now he is after hitters—a strange problem for Detroit. When he finds them Detroit will get back in the pennant races; from which it has been absent for more than ten years.

George Earnshaw Back In Form; Gives Three Hits And A's Win, 4 To 0

St. Louis Beats Cubs and Steps Into First Place in N. L.

BY ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
It wasn't so many months ago that George Earnshaw was buzzing 'em past the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series. For some reason or another, however, the famed right arm that came to the rescue of Connie Mack's Athletics last fall has not been performing so perfectly this spring for George—or at least it hadn't until yesterday.

Twice Connie Mack had given his right-handed ace the starting assignment and twice Earnshaw failed. On two other occasions he went in as a relief hurler but was not credited with a victory nor charged with a defeat. But yesterday, Earnshaw was the Earnshaw of 1930, who won 22 games for the world champions, as he turned the New York Yankees back with three singles and the Athletics notched a 4-0 victory. Earnshaw stepped out of his second while the other two were put together in the ninth in a futile rally after Mike Haas and Mickey Cochrane had put the champions out in front with home runs.

Jumping into battle after a five-day layoff due to rain and cold weather, the lowly Boston Red Sox pounded three Washington pitchers all over the lot to defeat the Senators 10 to 4. Jack Russell held Charlie Sullivan stepped out of his scattered hits while his teammates were getting to Alvin Crowder, Bob Burke and Tauscher for 14 safeties. Joe Judge, veteran Washington first baseman, was forced to withdraw from the game in the sixth and taken to a hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. His physician said he probably would be out of the game two weeks. Joey Kuehl of Baltimore will substitute for Judge.

Vic Frasier had his right arm and batting eye working on "all four" as he pitched and lured the White Sox to an 8 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The Texas rookie held the Browns to nine well-spaced hits and in addition doubled with bases loaded in the sixth—a seven-run inning for the Sox.

Charlie Sullivan stepped out of his usual role as a relief hurler, starting and finishing a game as the Detroit Tigers turned the Cleveland Indians back 4 to 2. Charlie Gehring, although not playing second because of a sore arm, got into his five hundred and ninety-seventh consecutive game when he suited up for McManus in the eighth.

Cards Beat Cubs
The battle for first place in the National league was settled, at least temporarily, when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 6 to 4. The victory gave the Cards undoubted possession of the top of the percentage column. Gabby Hartnett made a valiant effort to put the Cubs in first place with a home run in the second inning but his teammates failed to keep pace while the Cards took advantage of consecutive hits off Bob Smith and Bud Teachout.

To most teams, a two-game winning streak is not much but to the Brooklyn Dodgers it meant that they probably have hit their stride after a dismal start. Heavy hitting behind the stars, including a pair of homers by the Dodgers, their second in a row over the Phillies. The score was 5 to 4.

Hughie Critz, Giants second baseman, swung a powerful bat in New York's 5 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves. The Giants' second baseman hit a home run and a double in the first inning. The Braves' seven hits were scattered.

A base on balls proved to be the downfall of the Cincinnati Reds as they lost to the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4 in 11 innings. With the bases loaded Carroll lost control, passed Sankey and Paul Waner scored.

COLUMBUS MAKING BID FOR HONORS IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Beat Blues, Take Third Place; Brewers Win First Home Game

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(AP)—For a team that was figured to go nowhere in particular in the American association pennant race this season, the Columbus Red Birds, formerly the Columbus Senators, have at least gotten nicely started.

The St. Louis Cardinals obtained control of the club before the campaign opened and started by changing its nickname from Senators to Red Birds. Some ball players were moved to Columbus and after a wobbly start, the Red Birds today were in third place.

They lost a great finish yesterday to take the second game of the series from Kansas City, 9 to 2. The Blues finished the seventh with a 7 to 1 lead, but Columbus picked up three in the eighth, with Kansas City getting none in its half of the round. In the ninth four hits a spear of wildness on the part of Kansas City hurlers, gave Columbus five runs and the ball game.

Louisville retained its first place margin by making it three straight over Minneapolis, 9 to 5. The Colts got 12 hits off Parks, McCullough and Morgan, and bunched nine of them in the first three innings for all their runs. Keyes got a homer with the bases loaded in the first for four Miller runs, and McMillen got another in the fourth, to account for all the Minneapolis scoring.

St. Paul, the second place team, also scored its third straight of the series, defeating Indianapolis, 18 to 9. The Saints had a seven run lead as they went into the ninth, but John Prudden developed a streak of wildness and three batters over before he was relieved by Droom. St. Paul got 13 hits off Oral Hildebrand, Smith, Leslie Barnhart and Hall, of which four were made by Anderson.

Milwaukee defeated Toledo, 4 to 3, for its first home victory of the season. The Brewers clinched Bachman in the second inning, but Ross Ryan finished in excellent style. Amerigo Polli went all the way for Milwaukee to gain his third victory of the season.

STOCK MARKET CLIMBS UP IN LATE TRADING

Weekend Adjustments Steady Movement After Early Selling

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York (AP)—The stock market backed and filled erratically today, but turned uniformly upward in the final dealings as bears closed out their commitments in preparation for the weekend.

The brisk selling movement which appeared late yesterday was followed by further flurries during the earlier part of today's session, but the final weekend adjustment of accounts found more short covering to be done than selling. Gains of 1 to 3 points were numerous at the finish.

Weekend trade reviews reported little change in the general static business conditions, although first estimates of April automobile production indicated a fair gain over March. The steel industry remained decidedly in the doldrums although further recessions in mill activity are slight. An estimate of next week's production in the Youngstown area indicated aggregate operations at 43 per cent of capacity, as reduced from 45.

Steel shares were heavy for a time, U. S. Steel breaking to within a point of its 1927 minimum, but they rallied with the rest of the list in the final dealings. U. S. Steel

BUOYANCY IS FEATURE OF WHEAT TRADE

Market Aided by Report of Huge Purchase for Shipment Abroad

BY JOHN F. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago (AP)—Buoyancy developed in wheat prices today following reports that 13,000,000 bushels of wheat owned by farm board allies had been purchased for shipment overseas. The reported buyers were a syndicate that included two of the largest private export interests. It was asserted that the price obtained equaled 61 cents a bushel, free on board vessels.

Reports that a large amount of government-financed wheat at the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard had been disposed of to private exporters stimulated rallies from early declines. The amount of wheat thus disposed of was estimated in some quarters as perhaps 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels. An official statement confirmed that the grain stabilization corporation's Atlantic and Gulf seaboard wheat winter wheat had been sold and that the unsold portion of the corporation's recent 35,000,000 bushels offering for export shipment consisted of durum and Pacific coast wheat.

On the upward swing of wheat prices, early losses were more than wiped out, and all around advance was secured. The rise took place despite a handicap from stock market unsettlement. July wheat showed particular strength. Corn and oats fluctuations were governed largely by the course of wheat.

Provisions sagged owing to absence of important buying.

Most preliminary arrivals were 560,000 bushels, compared with 599,000 a week ago, and 692,000 at this time last year. Chicago receipts 122 cars, against 168, at this time last week and 187 a year ago.

MARKET STRONGER AS WEEK CLOSES

Early Declines Are Wiped Out Despite Abnormal Supply to Reach Mart

Chicago (AP)—Remarkable strength in the cattle market late in the week after prices had declined sharply Monday, was the feature of the livestock trading this week. Supplies at Chicago and at the 11 markets were the largest of the season, and practically all steers that came to market carried beef, but in spite of the abnormal supply both local packers and the shipping interests were active buyers in the last three days of trade. Demands for dressed beef were only for hunk cuts, and opened up to take all that were offered. Shippers accounted for the best on sale each day, paying as high as $9.75 for the best yearlings that came to market, and $9.50 for heavyweights. Compared with last week's cattle prices, general values for most to strong, with the exception of heavy cows and light heifers. All the advance that the heifer market piled up in the past two weeks was lost in a decline of 25 to 50 cents, and was never recovered. Yearling cuts of beef were steady to 50 cents higher for the wholesale market at Chicago for the week, while cuts showed a range steady to 50c lower.

Only 2,000 were to be seen on the market today, and in the limited trade that resulted buyers took anything they could find at fully steady prices. Lights sold at $8.75 and 270 lb. butchers went at $8.90 in the opening rounds. Packers took 7,500 direct from the run of 8,500 received in the Chicago yards.

After a higher market on Monday of this week hog prices took a tumble that reduced values for most to strong, with the exception of heavy cows and light heifers.
